Troops Called Out To Stand Guard Over Ancient City

BURN CHURCHES IN WAVE OF VIOLENCE

Madrid Is Quiet During Early Hours—Workers Return To Tasks

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MADRID, May 12.—Martial law, already in force in Madrid, was extended to Seville today when anti-religious demonstrators launched out anew at the Catholic Church, burning five more institutions to the ground in an unrestrained wave of violence.

Troops were immediately called out of their garrisons to stand guard over the ancient city, long a religious center.

New Outbreak

The new outbreak occurred early this morning. A mob of demonstrators, defying police and civil guards, set fire to the Capucine Convent, a Carmelite Convent, a Jesuit school, a Jesuit Convent and one church. All were completely destroyed, the firemen confining their activities to preventing spread of the flames.

Destruction of a second church was frustrated by the fact the rioters were unable to break in its massive doors. Angered over the failure of their plan, the crowd then proceeded to one of the largest and most beautiful churches in the city.

Spectators, appalled at the out-

Six-Year-Old Child Travels Here From Czecho Slovakia Alone

Ends Two-Week Journey, This Morning, When She Is Greeted By Mother

Is Accompanied From New York By Traveler Through Aid Of Red Cross

When little Marta Paczaiova, six years old, stepped from a Pennsylvania train into the waiting arms of her mother, one of the most joyous reunions that has been seen in this city for some time was witnessed by travelers at the West Side station.

Ever since last October, little Marta and her mother have been looking forward to the day when they would be reunited, for she was left behind when the mother and four sisters embarked from their native land in Czecho Slovakia last fall to join the husband, Joseph Paczaiova, who resides in West Pittsburg.

Through some technicality in the immigration laws, little Marta had to remain behind with her aunt, while the mother and four other sisters came to America. Finally, the objection against Marta was overcome, and she was allowed to start on the long journey to the land of her parents adoption, all alone.

Travels For Two Weeks.

For two weeks, she has been traveling, always alone, but under the watchful eye of the steamship officials and kindly fellow travelers.

She arrived in New York on Sunday on the S. S. Bremen from Bremen, Germany, and through the arrangements made by the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, was met by a representative of the Travelers Aid Society. She was put on a train for Pittsburgh, where Travelers Aid representatives met her and took care of her until the train for New Castle pulled out.

Little Marta did not want to board the train at Pittsburgh. She felt that her mother would be there to greet her and was afraid she was going away from her instead of to her. She was finally induced to board the train and arrived here at 10 o'clock, where her mother and sister, together with a cousin and Miss Kathryn A. Hite, Red Cross Nurse, were on hands to greet her.

The child was overjoyed at seeing her mother again, and clung to her with the happiest of smiles.

In Native Costume.

She could not be induced to part from her mother, nor her little traveling case, which contained all her

CLEVELAND, May 12—Gangland guns and bandits' pistols today added two more victims to an already long list of murders in Cleveland.

Geraldine Johnson, 30, described by police as the "Queen of Cleveland's Policy Racketeers," was shot to death in her coupe after she had finished drawing the capsule that picked the grand prize winner in a policy lottery, according to authorities.

The slaying of the woman underworld leader followed the murder of Joseph Coviello, 22, who was shot and killed in his taxicab by one of two men who attempted to rob him.

Move Is Made To Hold Fair Here This Fall

Delegation From Agricultural Association Visits County Commissioners

GIVEN ASSURANCE OF FINANCIAL HELP

County Willing To Appropriate $1000—Free Pass Situation Discussed

Preliminary steps toward a county fair next fall were taken this morning when a delegation from the Lawrence county Agricultural Association visited the county commissioners with a view to getting the usual appropriation.

The committee was composed of Ray R. McGeorge, A. Clyde Shoaff, Frank F. Forbes, J. Audley Boak and Charles Brookover. They met with County Commissioners P. Q. Elder, T. J. McCullough and Calvin C. Boyd in the jury commissioners room.

County Aid

Mr. McGeorge stated that the object of the visit was to ascertain if the county commissioners were willing to make an appropriation, provided a fair is held next fall. He said that it had not been definitely decided to hold a fair, but the committee wished to know just what the county would be willing to do in case it is decided to go head. The custom, he said, in the past has been for the county to make an appropriation.

P. O. Elder asked what amount the association desired. J. Audley Boak suggested $1500 or $2000. Commissioner McCullough stated that so far as he was concerned he would be willing to appropriate $1000, to be paid out following the close of the fair. Commissioners Elder and Boyd signified their willingness to go along for that amount.

Mr. McGeorge thanked the commissioners for the support of the county in the proposition.

In answer to a question as to when the fair would be held in case it is decided to go ahead, Mr. McGeorge said that the question had not been fully determined but it would likely be sometime in September, either immediately before or

Seventeen-Year Old Farm Hand Held For Questioning—Claims Innocence

ACCUSES ANOTHER OF ACTUAL SLAYING

Young Man Admits Hiding Bodies Of Mr. And Mrs. Thomas—Feared Slayer

(International News Service)

CANTON, O., May 12.—Accusing another man of the actual hatchet slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Thomas, on their farm near here, Ray Wilt, a 17-year old farm hand of subnormal mentality, according to police, removed here for questioning, today maintained that he was innocent of any connection with the fatal attack on the elderly couple.

In a signed statement made to deputy sheriffs, the youth admitted that he hid the hacked bodies in a clothes closet on the first floor of the Thomas farmhouse Saturday evening, May 2. He told police he had been threatened with death by the actual slayer if he revealed any of the details of the gruesome slaying.

After hiding the bodies of Thomas and his wife, Wilt said he drove away in the couple's automobile. Stopping at Carrollton, he sold a radio which he had taken from the home for $4. The suspect denied the theft of money from the Thom-

Sunday Base Ball Bill Passes House 106 To 98

Denning Bill Providing County Referendums On Sunday Baseball Up

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 12.—Anti-Blue Law forces in the House triumphed today when, by a vote of 106 to 98, they jammed through the lower chamber the Denning Bill legalizing Sunday baseball where electors approve of the sport in county referendums.

HARRISBURG, May 12.—Fair rate legislation and Sunday baseball again held the center of the assembly stage today as the senate judiciary general committee met here to decide the fate of the three administration fair rate board bills and the house prepared to take up the Denning bill on a special order of business. The latter measure provides for legalizing Sunday baseball in counties where electors approve its playing through referendums.

It was considered doubtful whether the fair rate measures would be reported from the committee. Opponents of the bills counted 25 members of the committee opposed to their passage, and there was evidence that the measures might die in the senate judiciary general body without getting a hearing on the upper house floor.

Special Session Threat.

Should the bills be killed, the governor will continue his stumping for them and the action will insure a special session of the legislature early next year, with fair rate legislation as one of its chief objects.

In the house, action on the Denning bill was expected to be the last forceful attempt to amend the blue laws of 1794 to permit Sunday baseball. Several other legalizing bills have met defeat by a narrow margin and the measure up today was expected to get an almost even vote

To Investigate Gas Delinquents

Six Men Are Being Sent From The State Department To Check Up Gas Stations

Ray R. McGeorge, district investigator of the automobile gas tax payments, received a telegram from Chief Investigator E. C. Apperman today notifying him that six men had been sent from the state department to investigate delinquent gas station owners and that they would put up at The Castleton while here.

Mr. McGeorge's territory is in Mercer, Crawford and Venango county and does not include Lawrence county. It is said that there is a considerable amount owing the state on the gasoline tax in this county. One of the troubles seems to be that may gas stations owners do a credit business, with the result that they are unable to meet their gas tax payments.

Several cases have already been taken into the Lawrence county court in which station owners have been charged with failure to pay the tax. In some cases it has been paid and in others jail sentences have been imposed.

There is now a bill before the assembly, providing for the payment of the tax at the source of supply. It has already passed the house and is likely to become a law. If the bill becomes a law it will likely do away with many delinquencies.

Adjournment Date For Legislators Is Set As May 28

At Noon, Thursday, May 28, Both Branches Of Assembly Will Adjourn

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, May 12.—The legislature will wind up its 1931 session, longest since 1923, in sixteen days.

A concurrent resolution, presented by Rep. Heffran, Washington, chairman of the house rules committee, fixing noon of Thursday, May 28, as the date for sine die adjournment was adopted in both houses at the opening session of the week with cheers and applause.

The adjournment will be six weeks later than the last three sessions, all of which wound up about the middle of April.

The 1923 session, only one in recent years to outrun the present legislative convocation, lasted until the middle of June.

East Side Merchants Offer Unusual Bargains On Golden Wednesday

"Golden Wednesday" will dawn bright and early in the East Side business section tomorrow morning when 13 business firms which form the East Side Merchants' Association join hands to provide for thrifty shoppers here one of the year's banner sales events.

Stores having a part in the all-day bargain jamboree will carry "Golden Wednesday" signs on their window fronts so that buyers can make no mistake as to where selling figures will be the lowest.

Fully describing shelf upon shelf of attractive merchandise, sacrificed for "Golden Wednesday" as never before, or at least for the past few months, are eight full page advertisements appearing in today's issue of The News. So as to not miss out on anything, take a glance at the ads, right away.

Thirteen merchants of the East Side are co-operating with one another to assure for the county at large a day of selling unequalled in sales events during the past few months. It so happens that the date is the 13th, but don't be a bit superstitious.

The 13 firms uniting for "Golden Wednesday"—the stores and garages which tomorrow will welcome merchandise buyers in great numbers, are as follows:

Braatz Service Station, Wright's Market, J. R. Rick Motor Company, Dan V. Cunningham, furniture; Welker's, florists; Sporting Goods Store, Keystone Furniture Company, Paisley's Pharmacy, Jesse N. Kerr, D. G. Ramsey and Sons, W. F. Dufford Furniture Company, the store formerly Hub and Mack's, and the Castle Motors, Ford agency.

Parking, the merchants announced, will be furnished free to any desiring space on newly completed parking plots on South Croton and to the rear of Wright's Market, East Washington street.

Should Wednesday's weather conditions turn out unfavorable, the sale will be extended until Thursday.

More Winners At Warren Eisteddfod

A Number In Addition To Those Already Reported Make Fine Showing

New Castle was represented by more winners at the Warren Eisteddfod than appeared in last night's News, it was learned today. Included in the additional list of winners and others who made a fine showing at the Eisteddfod, are those mentioned now.

In the violin solo competition for boys and girls under sixteen, Miss Anna Maxime Kennedy, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Francis, was one of the three in the finals from a group of fifteen, who participated in the preliminaries.

Mary Ruth Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Turner won third prize in the competition in recitations for those under six years. Clarabelle Cope won first prize in the Girl's Solo competition for those under eighteen years of age.

All these young people were selected as winners from a large field of contenstants. New Castle can well be proud of the winners, as no other city represented can show such a large number of winners in instrumental and vocal music and in the Literary section, Miss Nettie Denning Evans, formerly of this city, won second prize in the Prize Bag contest. Mrs. John Evans, formerly connected with the Cash Buyers store in this city, led the audience in singing during the morning session.

Mr. J. Heppleton Hepps had accumulated his wealth without any cost to his reputation. That is, despite the money he had accumulated he was known as a person who contracted few debts and paid those he did contract promptly and without quibbling. Not so, however, P. Heppleton Hepps, Jr. The son frequently got into debt and when he did and his creditors pressed him, it was his custom to call upon his father for assistance.

And so it was that when Billy Sikes, Hepps' bosom companion, had gotten tired of waiting for the payment of some money that young Hepps had borrowed he began to press Hepps for it. And young Hepps, as was his custom, immediately turned to his father for assistance and support. For some reasan it suited the purpose of the elder Hepps not to pay his account so quickly. So he went to his friend Broad and asked him to try to arrange the matter between Sikes and his son. If necessary, Broad should go surety for the debt. Then the elder Hepps promised Broad that what he would be compelled to pay Sikes he would repay.

Broad did as his friend asked, took up the matter with Sikes and became surety for the debt, but subsequently he was obliged to pay Sikes. Thereupon Broad called on Hepps to reimburse him. But here a strange thing happened. For some reason Hepps answered that his promise to pay was merely verbal and therefore void. Broad was amazed. He sued.

immediately after the Mercer and Stoneboro fairs.

Pass Situation

In a discussion as to what would help make the fair a success, someone stated that if the free passes were cutout it would assist.

County Commissioner Boyd stated that he has had 23 years experience in the conduct of fairs, and the free pass problem has always caused worry. The trouble has been when passes have been given to exhibitors and others, good while the fair lasts, some have been handed over to others, after being used one day by the person to whom issued. As some of the passes are good for admission and grand stand, the loss has been considerable.

It was the sense of the meeting that if the pass situation were understood, there would be enough sportsmanship on the part of all patrons to pay their own way.

Holding of a county fair has never been a money making proposition and it is necessary for economy in all directions. The committee is now convassing the proposition and will be able to announce something definite in a short time.

HOUSE TAKES UP SUNDAY BASEBALL MEASURE TODAY

If the bill fails, it is not thought proponents of Sunday baseball will make any determined attempt to get another through, although they will probably try for a reconsideration of the present measure.

Work Speeded Up.

Both houses faced full schedules after long opening meetings. In the senate in the first session of the week, the first of the appropriation bills for state-aid hospitals came out of committee, indicating the home-stretch of the session is near. May 28 is now accepted as a date for final adjournment and both chambers will work at top speed to clean up their calendars.

The senate passed several bills finally, including the Musmanno measure for examination and licensing of barbers. It also put on first reading the administration bill for a greater Pennsylvania council, appropriating $475,000 for the council. The council will comprise 150 members and will study ways to develop natural resources of the state and find markets for industries hit by the depression. The appropriation will be used for expenses of the commission and $250,000 will be utilized in further study of developments for the port of Philadelphia.

Code Bill Postponed.

While the senate moved through its calendar, the house took up the proposed state election code, considered it and in three minutes sent it to the postponed calendar. Rep. D. Glenn Moore, sponsor of the bill, seconded a motion for postponement of action on the bill in order to present amendments which, it is hoped, will meet some of the objections to the proposed code.

The lower chamber also voted down attempts to amend the administration supported motor vehicle code bill of Rep. Sheffer, Mifflin, by reducing the automobile license and drivers' fees. Anti-administration members sought to amend the bill to provide a cut from $10 to $5 in license fees and $2 to $1 for drivers' fees, as originally provided in the bill.

The reduction features were cut out by the highways committee on the ground they would interfere with the administration rural road program. After lengthy debate, with anti-administration members urging the reductions because the governor promised them during the campaign the move to amend the bill was voted down.

The house passed the Witkin bill defaeted two weeks ago and reconsidered, to provide for registration of firearms over opposition of several members from rural districts.

Resolution Passed.

First attempt of the session to over-ride a governor's veto was postponed when Rep. Sterling Philadelphia, moved to postpone consideration of the veto of Gov. Pinchot on Sterling's bill authorizing Philadelphia to increase its borrowing capacity from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000. The veto message was received and held, with action postponed until a later date.

The house, before rising, passed the Cauffiel resolution calling on the interstate commerce commission to investigate Pennsylvania coal freight rates as compared with those of other states. The resolution charged that preferential rates result in Pennsylvania coal, with a 600-mile haul, is unable to compete with coal from other states hauled but 100 miles.

STAR LORE

THE RELATIVE VOLUME OF EARTH AND MOON

By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

In computing the volume—or amount of space occupied by any two spherical bodies—also called bulk, any two such bodies vary as the cube of their diameters. The cube of the moon's diameter as compared with the cube of the earth's diameter is as 1 to 49, and that represents the relative volumes of moon and earth. But if one could stand upon the moon when it is in the direction of the sun from the earth, and view the earth, he would see it as a great full moon not 49 times as large as the full moon, but only 14 times as large, for apparent dimensions are governed by surface areas, not by volume.

The officers report they found fifty quarts and fifty pints of home brew beer and two crocks of the stuff being brewed. They arrested Mrs. W. Hanlon, as the proprietress, and three men, one who claimed to be the nephew of Mrs. Hanlon. Mrs. Hanlon was charged with being the keeper of a disorderly house and put up a forfeit of $25 for her appearance this morning. She failed to appear and her money was declared the property of the city. The three men were fined $10 each.

COMMITTEE VOTES POSTPONEMENT OF FAIR RATE BILLS

day voted to postpone action upon them "indefinitely."

Regardless of the tactics which the governor may adopt it is not believed that the committee will reverse its action. A majority vote could discharge the committee from further consideration of the bills. That, however, is a course seldom followed in the Senate and one which even his supporters would be slow to adopt, it is believed.

The action of the committee today followed closely on the public hearing yesterday when Public Service Company representatives made a mass attack on the provisions of the bills. In addition to the faults found with the bills by industrial leaders, Robert Von Moschzisker, former chief justice of the state supreme court, told the committee that two of the bills are unconstitutional in several respects and that they never would be upheld by the appellate courts.

Approval of the bills now would leave the state, he said, without either a Public Service Commission or a fair rate board.

Warned By Pinchot

In the event that the unlikely move to discharge the committee from consideration of the bills is not made, and the measures die in the judiciary general body, their demise will put the stamp of certainty on a special session of the legislature early next year.

In the stumping tour of the state which he began last week to whip up support for the bills, the governor stated on three occasions he would call a special session of the general assembly to deal with public legislation in the event that the fair rate bills were killed.

Should the extra session be called, creation of a fair rate board and abolition of the present Public Service Commission is certain to be one of the major objects of the special meeting. The governor, in his tour, gave no indication of when the special session would be summoned other than it would be "before the spring primaries."

STATE TROOPER IS SHOT TO DEATH IN ASSISTING ARREST

of beating his mother opened fire from his ambush.

Full details of the slaying were not immediately available. It was assumed, however, that Lodge, having advance notice that the troopers were enroute to serve him with a warrant, equipped himself with the gun and calmly waited their arrival.

Troopers who went in pursuit were urged to use the utmost caution. Lodge was believed to still be armed with the pistol with which he had snuffed out the life of Sergeant McCarthy.

Tells of Shooting

McConnellsburg, Pa., May 12.—An eyewitness account of the slaying of Sergeant Timothy McCarthy and the wounding of Sergeant Russel K. Kniese was given International News Service today by Sheriff F. Glen Younker of Fulton county, who accompanied the officers when they approached the Brush Hill farm to arrest Marshal Lodge, 32, for beating his mother.

Sheriff Younker, a number of his deputies and the two state troopers approached the little farm house just as dawn was breaking today.

"McCarthy and Kniese went ahead to get Lodge," the sheriff related. "Lodge's mother opened the door and when they asked for Marshal she said he was still in bed and closed the door.

"A few minutes later the door opened just an inch or so and a volley of shots poured out. McCarthy fell on the porch, shot near the heart and instantly killed.

"Then my deputies and I surrounded the house shouting for Lodge to come out. He answered us with sniping gun shots from the windows.

"We shot at one side of the house and then at the other, and while doing this Kniese was wounded through the shoulder.

"The hostilities were called off while I sent some of my men to Chambersburg and Bedford for reinforcements. A number of troopers answered the call, all armed with high-powered service revolvers.

"One of the men got a lucky shot at Lodge through the wall of the house and he gave up. He gave us no sign, but the shooting stopped and then we went in the house our revolvers before us, and apprehended him."

Marshall, who Sheriff Younkers said had been a troublesome factor in the mountainside neighborhood, was shackled and rushed to the Fulton county courthouse here under heavy guard.

He refused to make any statements, sullenly telling the officers that he shot in "self-defense".

The little town of McConnellsburg was wild with excitement when the large company of troopers, police and deputies brought Lodge here. Sheriff Younker said he would be removed to the Chambersburg hospital, where a checkup of his injuries will be made.

When medical treatment is accorded Lodge he will be given a preliminary hearing on charges of murder in connection with the death of Sergeant McCarthy, the wounding of Kniese and other related charges.

Sheriff Younker related that on several previous occasions Lodge, whom he termed as being temporarily mentally deranged, had terrified the countryside here with shooting. A previous attempt had been made to arrest him yesterday by Sheriff Younker and his men. When they learned that Lodge was prepared to resist and was well stocked with an arsenal of firearms and ammunition, they desisted and waited until today, when the aid of state troopers was granted.

Harrisburg, May 12. — Sergeant Timothy G. McCarthy, Troop E, Pennsylvania State Police, who was shot to death in Fulton county early today by a farm youth believed to be demented, joined the State Police on Sept. 1, 1919, examination of his service record here showed. He enlisted in the police force of the State immediately upon discharge from the army, where he had served in Battery 'B', 102nd Field Artillery.

Sergt. McCarthy was 42 years old and was born in Ireland. He was attached to Troop E of the State Police, stationed at Harrisburg, and had been here for the past few years.

His service record showed no home address nor gave the names of any relatives.

Private Kniese, who was wounded in the shooting which cost his superior officer's life, enlisted in the State police force from Hazleton. He was a member of Troop E, but had recently been on detached service at the sub-station at Chambersburg.

EXTEND MARTIAL LA WTO SEVILLE; NEW OUTBREAKS

rages, stepped in and dissuaded the rioters from their intention of destroying this edifice, appealing successfully to them to spare it as a national monument.

Troops Take Possession

The crowds of demonstrators and spectators who had filled the streets since the early morning hours scattered as heavily armed troops took possession of the city, setting up machine-gun detachments before church buildings, just as had been done in Madrid.

Intense indignation was expressed by the general populace over the outrages. Law-abiding elements hold the alleged weakness of the government responsible for permitting the destruction to take place.

The rioting mobs were composed of rabble of the lowest class, apparently influenced slightly by Communist propaganda, who have taken advantage of the present situation to demonstrate their anti-clerical sentiments and attempt to throw the country into anarchy.

Under the bristling guns of infantry and the drawn swords of cavalrymen, Madrid was quiet during the early hours today. Most of the workers returned to their tasks.

Blame Alfonso

Madrid, May 12—Former King Alfonso and his Monarchist supporters are directly responsible for the wild outburst of disorders which have resulted in the destruction of more than a score of Catholic convents, monastaries and other buildings in a half dozen Spanish cities in the past 48 hours, Attorney General Galarza declared today.

Galarza's statement was issued simultaneously with an announcement that martial law had been extended to the city of Malaga, so that Cadiz, Seville, Bilboa Cordova, Alicante and Malaga, as well as Madrid, are under military rule. In all these cities troops patrolled the streets and held strategic points under threat of machine gun fire as precautionary measures against further outbreaks.

Charges will be filed against Alfonso and his alleged co-plotters for their responsibility for these disorders, Galarza declared.

GIRL RESERVES BANQUET MOTHERS

The Senior High Girl Reserves proved most charming hostesses Monday evening when they entertained their mothers at the annual Mother-Daughter banquet, held in the Green room of the Y. W. C. A.

The girls in their pretty frocks, with their mothers, assembled in the parlors of the Y. W. and then marched to the Green room, where they entered by a green portal, designed by Elizabeth Lowers, to the dining room, where small tables, each seating two mothers and two daughters, were tastefully arranged. On each table was a centerpiece presenting a piece of architecture from a foregin land and clever place cards, boys and girls of various countries, marked each place. These decorations and favors were fashioned and painted by Elizabeth Lowers.

Miss Grace Lower, secretary of the Girl Reserve department of the Y. W. C. A., invoked the divine blessing as the assemblage stood at their places. There were several Girl Reserve songs used throughout the serving of a delicious menu, and the evening, with Helen Shaffer at the piano and Gladys Biddle leading the singing.

At the conclusion of the banquet Rosalind Freeman, vice president of the club, acted as toastmistress and cleverly introduced the various speakers. Miss Virgil Wettich, president of the club, gave the toast to mothers, telling what the love, companionship and trust of a mother meant to every girl; Mrs. A. J. Randles graciously responded to the toast, speaking of what the daughter means to a mother, how the good name of her daughter is nearest to the heart of a mother and suggested that each girl grow up in the way her mother would have her grow.

Miss Freeman then announced that the mothers and daughters would now be taken on a trip to foreign countries and find out how the mothers and daughters of those countries differed from our own. Miss Mary Long played a piano composition, German Lullaby, introducing the music of Germany, after which Miss Mary Riffer took the group to Germany and gave an interesting story of the place of womanhood in that country, both before and after the war; an Irish jig was next presented, being given by Charlotte Snyder, with Clarissa Duff at the piano.

Miss Espedita Abruzzini, Italian International Institute worker, then took the girls and women to Italy and described the mothers and daughters of that sunny clime, telling of the customs of mother and daughter in both the northern and southern part of the country.

Mrs. Sara McCune most beautifully described the Land of the Midnight Sun, telling of her trip through that country last year, and although she did not come in direct contact with the mothers and daughters, here description of the country and the sun at midnight was most interesting.

The concluding number of the program was given by Mlle. Mercat, teacher of French at Westminster College, New Wilmington, who presented a number of French songs most beautifully.

The assemblage then came back to America and after expressing their appreciation to the girls for a most pleasant evening the group dispersed.

Much credit is due to the various committees who worked so tirelessly for the success of the event.

Woman's Club Members Have Distinguished Guest

"Education irrigates our own lives to make them fruitful" said Mrs. John A. Frick, of Allentown, state president of the Federation of Pennsylvania Women, as she spoke before the members and guests of the Woman's Club Monday at luncheon in the Highland United Presbyterian church.

Mrs. A. B. Street, president of the Woman's Club, presided at the one o'clock luncheon given in the Highland United Presbyterian Church for distinguished guests who are in the city in connection with the Girl Scout Conference being held in The Castleton this week.

The dining tables, with places arranged for over one hundred women were centered with beautiful apple blossoms, dogwood and other spring flowers, while the speakers' table was beautiful with a large bouquet of Talisman roses, which were later presented to Mrs. John F. Frick.

Concluding the delicious menu, Mrs. Street turned the program over to Mrs. W. A. Pond, chairman of the education committee of the Woman's Club, who was in charge of the program for the day.

She introduced the president of the Federation of Pennsylvania Women, who was the guest speaker. Mrs. Frick acknowledged the introduction in a most gracious manner, and she made a beautiful appearance as she arose, stately and dignified in the uniform of a Girl Scout.

She gave a splendid report of the national convention of the General Federation, which she attended last week in Phoenix, Arizona. She said the theme of the council meeting was "Life's Enrichment Through United Efforts" and told of how every state in the Union was represented in the splendid gathering in the west last week and it is through the united efforts of these splendid club women, that the questions of the day will be solved, which was one of the reasons for the general meeting of the nation's women.

She further stated that the club women stand for the betterment of humanity and the education of themselves to meet the situations of the day as they arise. The fellowship of club work stands out first in the local club, then in the state convention and then in the national organization and the unified efforts is aptly illustrated by the state where the national convention met, the aridity of the soil, which has been transformed into fertility by the united efforts of scientists and engineers in placing the irrigation canals throughout the state.

Education's Place

"Education irrigates our own lives to make them fruitful" said Mrs. Frick, and the old idea that children learn more quickly has been exploded by scientists of recent years, who say that the age of 47 is when a person most readily learns various languages as they can be more readily mastered then. She said the time to learn a thing is just before you want to use it and with this in mind the adult may attain and height and this is a challenge to the club women, who are mature in years, to keep their minds ever on the alert for those things which tend to the betterment of humanity.

Solving the problem of youth is another question that must be faced by the club woman, she went on, and through the Girl Scout movement this can be done better than in any other way and she appealed to the women to become more interested in the youth of the country through contact with the Girl Scouts as the minds of the present day must advance with the times, one can not solves the 1932 Girl problems with 1900 ideas. Our ideas must change with the times but not our ideals. The club woman must learn to change her convictions and when to stand firm.

One of the best ways to keep up with education today is to take up reading courses in the clubs and to this end Mrs. Frick advised the use of one of the newer books by Mrs. McMullen Vernon, on "International Relationships" which takes up the problem of education of the world to peace. The women of Europe are looking to the women of America to lead in this education, as no other woman on the face of the earth are so well equipped and the General Federation of Women's clubs is the medium through which much can be accomplished and if people all over the world are looking to the club women in this way, then it is up to the Federated Women to live up to the challenge.

By getting back of the Girl Scout movement the club women can accomplish much, by teaching the coming generation to become the kind of women we want them to be.

Other Guests Speak

Mrs. Frederick Ahbe, contact chairman of the Girl Scouts then greeted the assemblage and asked the co-operation of the Club in backing the Girl Scout organization.

Miss Gertrude McKinney of Butler, a member of the board, greeted the women in a few words, as did Mrs. Joseph Grandey of Rochester, Mrs. Frank Perrott, Mrs. John Coleman of Beaver Falls and Mrs. Grace Dunkerly of New Brighton were also among the special guests.

Many club presidents of the Federation of Women's Clubs in Lawrence County were seated about the tables.

Concluding the after dinner speaking, the club members adjourned to the church parlor where the routine business meeting concluded the day's program.

HADASSAH HEARS PALESTINE HISTORY

The home of Mrs. E. Kaplan, North Mercer street, was thrown open to the members of the New Castle chapter of Hadassah and guests Monday evening for a special meeting to hear Mrs. David De Sola Pool of New York City tell of the work being carried on in Palestine.

Mrs. L. F. Kohn, president of the society, conducted a brief business session in which the reports of the various committees were heard and financial statements given. She announced a new member had been enrolled, Mrs. S. Grossman, and also that the meeting of the cultural class Monday, May 18, would close the cultural class for the summer.

Miss Sally Cohen, president of the local Junior Hadassah, greeted the seniors and told of the junior activities; Mrs. M. Schermer of Sharon brought greetings from Sharon and Mrs. M. Bolotin and Mrs. Max Reinhart brought greetings from Ellwood City.

Mrs. Kohn the introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. David De Sola Pool of New York City and Palestine, a woman of most eloquent oratorical ability, whose wonderful personality was felt by every woman in the group. Her well modulated voice made every word she spoke most distinct and clear.

She brought some Hebrew history to the Jewish women, taking up the work of the three most outstanding workers in the restoration of Palestine: Theodore Herzel, the modern prophet of Palestine, who has aroused the enthusiasm of Jewry throughout the world in restoring Palestine. She also spoke of the work of A. Lunz, the well known blind guide of Palestine, who although he has been without sight for many years, can guide the tourist to the most beautiful spots of the Holy Land and tell the history as no other guide has ever done. He has also been prominent in the movement for educating the blind and aiding in the abatement of blindness in the country. It is notable that since Hadassah has taken up the health work in Palestine into the most wonderful collection the world has ever known and his collection of the plant life of every part of the land now is placed in the Hebrew university of Jerusalem.

She closed her talk with telling how Henrietta Zoe had given the Jewish women definite work and responsibilities when she organized Hadassah, the women's Zionist movement, and she urged the local chapter to carry on the work they have so well begun.

Closing Mrs. Pool's talk she answered many questions put by the women.

The hostesses of the evening: Mrs. E. Kaplan, Mrs. N. Rabinowtiz, Mrs. A. Marlin, Mrs. T. Marlin, Mrs M. Newmark, Mrs. E. Shifman, Mrs. M. Davis, Mrs. L. Groden, Mrs. H. Klivans, served dainty refreshments, bringing a most instructive evening to a close.

DIVERSITY IN MARITAL CODES

LACK of stability in the marriage and divorce laws of the United states is shown by the fact that thirty-six of the forty-four legislatures in session this year considered changes of one kind or another. Seventeen states have already ratified certain provisions and action is pending on four more. Of 115 bills presented, about thirty have been signed to date.

Divorce laws evidently yield more easily to political pressure than do marriage laws. The circumstance has been observed in Pennsylvania. Yet in both cases may be noted a tendency to ignore the sociological aspect of the questions. Too often the matters are treated as business enterprises. For instance, Arkansas and Idaho, eager to obtain a share of Nevada's huge divorce trade, cut the requirement for legal residence to ninety days, and Nevada countered by reducing its former ninety-day qualification to six weeks. Corresponding to easy divorce laws for migrants in some states are the easy marriage laws in others. Maryland, famous for its Gretna Greens, refused this year to establish a three-day interval between the application and issuance of licenses. Eight other states likewise rejected similar proposals. Seven have adopted it for the first time this year, including Wyoming, where it prevailed over a gubernatorial veto.

The circumstances indicate the wide diversity of our marital codes. While many suggested reforms touch only minor details, enough have been cited to prove the importance of the rest in certain particulars. Yet the legislative survey today offers little hope of any immediate trend toward uniformity in the major aspects of the problem. The marriage laws should be national; and uniform in all states.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE WASHINGTON CONGRESS

After all the discussions at the congress of the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington last week the resolutions finally adopted were marked by caution and restraint. The two important questions of tariffs and the revision of war debts were touched upon in general terms. The plain statements by President Hoover and Secretary Mellon showed the futility of any radical action. So the congress simply urged the removal of every possible obstacle to trade, with the prompt utilization of available machinery for tariff adjustments—for example, the flexible clause in the American tariff—and declared that an impartial examination of the debt agreements would not be incompatible with international obligations if it were warranted by changed economic conditions. Such declarations did not and could not affect the American view. In the words of a Japanese delegate, the congress "had not come to any definite policies for meeting the world crisis."

With the great diversity of national interests at stake, such policies would have been difficult to formulate in any circumstances reflects the Philadelphia Inquirer. More decided steps were taken in the proposal of an international conference for the stabilization of silver; in the call, following the president's lead, for a general reduction of armaments; in the suggestion of an agreement on crop limitation; in a demand for balanced budgets to hold down taxation and maintain national credits. The resolution for adherence to most favored nation treaties was in effect a condemnation of the Austro-German customs union.

The outcome is obviously not all the foreign delegates hoped it would be. But the value of a gathering of business men was not materially impaired by the avoidance of controversial topics with a political bearing, and good feeling seems to have prevailed throughout. It was not necessary that the views of all the delegates should be reconciled. Something was gained by what President Wilson would have called the meeting of minds in free and open discussion.

PRETTY SPECTACLE, TO BE SURE

The American Newspaper Publishers Association recently petitioned the Radio Commission to issue a general order forbidding lottery and gambling advertising over the radio. The commission has turned down this petition, and we have a pretty spectacle. The newspapers of the nation are forbidden to carry lottery and gambling advertisements into the homes of the people, while the radio is privileged to carry information of the kind into these homes, day and night. It is not right for the newspapers to do it, but perfectly all right for the radio to corrupt the morals of young and old by telling them how and where to gamble and play the lotteries. The commission takes the peculiar view that under the radio law, it has no authority to exercise censorship, from which view, one member entered a dissenting note. The commission takes the ground that it is specifically prohibited from exercising censorship powers, it being prohibited from interfering "with the right of free speech by means of the radio." The newspaper spokesmen claimed that the commission has such authority, stating as a developed fact that during the last few months certain stations have been devoting more and more time to programs "in which lottery and gift enterprises predominate, and that with the exception of radio, all other avenues of advertising were forbidden from accepting such advertising, under both state and federal laws."

No one will believe that it was the purpose of congress to permit radio broadcasting stations to spread information over the nation of a kind that is forbidden by both government and state laws, but the commission takes refuge behind congress and advises that until the laws are amended, matter specifically suppressed by federal and state laws is privileged for the radio, and it seems that meanfime, nothing can be done about it.—The Charlotte Observer.

Fine Personalities
I Admire Them. I Fear Them
The Deadly Sin?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Along came a letter with my name on the envelope. I opened it.

It said:

"You seem to object to people with 'fine personalities.' Why do you criticize such men and women? Don't you know that Personality is the soul of man shining through the flesh of mortality? Please don't do it any more."

I can't promise. I'm not so sure that a fine personality is the soul shining through. For all I know, it may be just a trick of the flesh. A charming smile. A tilt of the head. A gleam in the eye. Two rows of regular white teeth. Perfect health. A way with the men. A way with the women. Things like those.

I'm no enemy of Fine Personalities. I envy those lads who "get away with murder." I'm attracted, too, by those maidens who crook a little finger and draw all the youths after them by the invisible cords of their personality. Personality is a great and charming mystery, surviving all else in man, enduring beyond youth and health and beauty. I'm not sure it has anything to do with character. I know it does not always live in the same house with intelligence. It is the perfume of the flower, the glisten of the fallen dew, the song of the distant bird, the sweetness of honey from the Hills of Hymettus. . . . I could be almost a poet when I think about personality and be rapturous in my praises, singing tra-la-la for hours on end.

But it is dangerous when abused. It must be guarded. It must be held sacred, as a splendid gift. It must not be USED, it must be SERVED. The charming woman who relies on her personality sometimes becomes spoiled and selfish. The man who uses his personality to serve his own ambitions—and thinks only of himself—may become a smiling monster who is shallow and unscrupulous and untrustworthy.

I do not sneer at Fine Personality. I adore it, I yield to it, but I fear it when I see it in the hands of men and women who do not know how precious a possession it really is—and who betray it so terribly by sending it to market and using it for their own private and selfish ends. And I'm sure that that betrayal should be listed among the deadliest of sins.

THE HARDER TASK

They teach her in school how to read and to write
And to add and subtract and divide,
But her mother must drill her in manner polite
And her patience is frequently tried
And I fancy that fractions ar easier to teach
Then the nice little habits of conduct and speech.

They mark her "one hundred," in spelling to show
That she's mentally quick and alert,
But it's mother opinion the child is too slow
In learing the evils of dirt.
And she says to teach spelling must easier be
Then training a youngster to wash up for tea.

Her behavior in school is perfection
they say,
Which is pleasing, of course, to us
all,
But she still hangs her head and goes running away
When company comes in to call,
And the curtsy she drops is so stingy
and slight
That her mother's afraid she will never do right.

The teachers in school say she reads
very well
And remembers whatever she's told.
She can name the far land where the Esquimaux dwell
And she gives them no reason to scold,
But her mother must teach her to hang up her dress
And look after her clothes—and that's harder, I guess.

DEAD TIMBER

You wish to be known as a person with opinions you are not afraid to express.

You say you have no use for the person who changes his opinion.

You state that you are still supporting the opinions you formed many years ago.

Time with its changing conditions has added years to your life but has not increased your knowledge and reasoning powers.

You call it staunchness but, in reality, you have not advanced.

In your effort to seem strong-minded you have closed your mind to everything that disagreed with your previously conceived opinions.

You might have added much to your store of facts and fundamentals but when you once form an opinion you keep it.

Wise men change their opinions when confronted with irrefutable proof.

Opinionated persons live in the past—the world and its advancement means nothing to them—they are dead timber.

THE BRIDE

Oh, I will meet your kisses
With kisses warm and red,
And softly on your bosom
I'll lay my bended head;
Oh, I will meet your laughter
With music in my throat,
And give you shy caresses
That you with pride may gloat,
Saying, "How she loves me!"
(But underneath the stars,
I'll hear a low voice murmuring
Across old pasture bars!)

Oh, I will walk beside you
Sedate, when you would be,
Or dance ahead to please you,
Or curl upon your knee;
I'll sing when you like singing,
I'll read before the fire
So softly that your shut eyes
Shall see a heavenly choir!
I'll dimple at your teasing,
I'll smile beneath your praise
(But when the firelight paints the walls
I'll dream of other days!)

Oh, I'll be very tender
When you are tired or ill,
I'll be moonlight in the meadow
And sunshine on the hill. . . .
Let my mood match your mood
As flakes reflect the sun
Or clouds upon their bosoms,
Till you feel that we are one;
You'll be so sure I'm happy
You'll know no fear or dread.
(But, oh, when you lie sound asleep,
I'll wish that I were dead!)

REAL WOMANHOOD IS ADMIRED

I know a woman who is naturally thoroughly feminine, and has many of those gentle qualities which make men marvel. Suffrage has changed her somewhat; she has heard about her wrongs until she believes she has some. In addition, she is a spinster, and somehow holds the men responsible for that. Still, she has frequent flashes of beautiful natural womanhood, and the men love to hang around and admire her. "Well, not very much," he answered, with an air of becoming modesty. "But the other evening I had a remarkable experience which might be called an example of the art."

"Well," said George, "I looked at a friend's hand and predicted that he would shortly have some money. Before I left him he had quite a useful sum given him."

"And you foretold that from his hand, dear?" asked the girl.

Upon their learning depended the degree of their greatness. So from this we may infer that a man is only as great as his ability to learn.

Chesterton, Critic, Stirs Defenders Of Villages Here

British Visitor Meets Opposition In Attack On Some Phases Of American Life, But His Ideas Are Shared By Advocates Of Civic Improvement

Americans resent comments on the less attractive communities that may be found in the United States, uttered by Gilbert K. Chesterton, after his return to England from an American tour. Nevertheless, the press voices the thought that the hope of civic leaders in this country is in the direction of improved settings for communities. It is pointed out that America is young and that its vitality and growth are likely to have a physical background that has not reached perfection. There are suggestions that his ideal in such matters is medieval in some respects and does not appeal to this country.

"Because most of our highways avoid the residential sections of our towns, and afford the tourist no glimpse of lawns, tree-arched side streets and pleasant cottages," says the NEWARK EVENING NEWS, "the Chestertonian criticism is not quite fair, but, so far as it goes, it is accurate." The News emphasizes "the resentment a large proportion of our population has to these conditions," and the "patient but necessarily slow labor many are engaged in to keep matters from getting worse." The HARTFORD TIMES remarks that "it is almost only yesterday that America was a wilderness," and that "it takes time to make a village or a tame, refined countryside." That paper adds that "our industry has run ahead of our culture," but declares that "while flitting from one place to another in fly-by-night fashion, he did not see as much as he might, and gained general impressions which as to many particulars are quite false."

"If Europe and America were alike," thinks the SAN FRANCISCO CHONICLE, "there would be less reason for visiting back and forth, and this country might have missed the Chesterton presence." The Chronicle feels that "Americans are conscious of most of the things Chesterton is quoted as deploring," but assumes that "like nearly everyone with the gift of verbal caricature, he expects his exaggerations to be taken as such and properly discounted." The CINCINNATI TIMES STAR suspects that in speaking before the Society for the Preservation of Rural England, "perhaps he was only telling the society what it wanted to hear," as the organization "is dedicated to the hard task of discouraging Englishmen from selling the nation's historic shrines to rich Americans."

"Mr. Chesterton's admiration for the Middle Ages is well known," according to the ROANOKE TIMES, "but by comparison modern America has nothing for which to apologize we imagine." The Times concedes that "a good deal" of what he said "is true," and "all of it has been said by some of our own leading citizens at one time or another." The DETROIT FREE PRESS states that "we've been at it only three centuries," and argues: "Americans are a little to fast for Chesterton's medieval mind. A lot of things over here went right past him, without registering. We have our 'pockets' of medievalism, too, where the instincts of the jungle crop out; but we also have our gardens, where the fairest blossoms of civilization unfold their fragrance upon the hopes of mankind. Give us time."

"Of course, no American pretends," remarks the SIOUX CITY JOURNAL, "that this country is not different. But other countries are different, too. In England visitors accustomed to warm homes almost freeze to death, and in France one is lucky if one gets a bath even on Saturday night. And finally, Americans are willing to reach this conclusion—that others may have their countries with their differences, and we'll keep this one!"

"Mr. Chesterton is sincerely worried—so much anguish certainly can come from sincerity," comments the CINCINNATI ENQUIRER,"—about his American third and fourth cousins. We have no villages; our towns are eyesores; we hang tin signs and build unsightly shacks along our roadways. All in all, according to Mr. Chesterton, America is about to go to pot; and probably a good thing, too. Sooner or later we may contaminate Europe and make away with those remaining traces of medievalism which are the very core of Mr. Chesterton's sentimental heart. In this respect it is interesting that Englishmen quite willingly sell their medieval relics to Americans, who seem to prize them more highly."

"It would be wiser and more philosophic," contends the COLUMBIA (S. C.) STATE, "for such critics, who may very easily break their shins on the crudity of our civilization, which has still not reached adolescence or even puberty, to consider our age. It would also be prudent for Britons to remember that our villages are at least vital and growing, while theirs are admittedly in a stage of inertia and slow decay. Chesterton might profitably devote some minutes to a re-reading of the accepted best portraiture of a British village in this process of decay once so full of such charm as:

'The sheltered cot, the cultivated farm,
The never-failing brook, the busy mill,
The decent church that topped the neighboring hill,
The hawthorn bush, wtih seats beneath the shade,
For telking age and whispering lovers made!'

But Chesterton knows, as well as Goldsmith, that these are signs of mossy age, and are impossible in any new country."

Giving special attention to a later explanation made by Mr. Chesterton, the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS states: "From Gilbert K. Chesterton come apologetic explanations of his recent comments on the externals of American small town and village life. No offense was taken, however, because of those comments. Such community aspects as were the subject of his remarks are familiar to and are regretted by many Americans. As Mr. Chesterton notes, rather periphrastically, they are incidental to a rapidly developing country, a country which has not become static and stratified, but still counts on change as the one absolute certainty."

Similarly the CHATTANOOGA TIMES offers the judgment: "After reading his statement of explanation and amplification, even the most sensitive of Americans are not likely to harbor any grudge against the distinguished critic, and some may benefit from his criticism. Newspaper folk will admire him for fearing 'a rather wrong impression' was received 'from what I said' instead of saying 'I didn't say it.'"

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

PAST PERFORMANCES

Around no figure in Wall Street annals does more of legend gather than about Ferdinand Ward who had the obloquy of having been the betrayer, almost the destroyer, of General Grant at banking.

Still live a few of those who knew Ward. And some singular as the fact may appear, member him agreeably. One who was then a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and who today must stand the bromide title of Old Timer, recalls the maker of 1884's panic in this distinction from popular excoriations.

"My summer home was in Stamford. Ward has a mansion there. We daily took the same train to town. He liked to talk of the market. Was in no way know-it all but he had his theories that he revelled in expatiating upon.

"He was the first Wall Streeter I ever knew to go in for charts. He was just as glib about 'cycles' as are the patterers today. One morning I said to him: 'Do you really think that you can bob a lot of lines up and down a foolscap sheet, illustrating what you call fast performances, and from those ink tangles tell what's on the way for tomorrow? And he answered:

"'Sure! Markets are just repeating echoes. I pursued. 'Have you ever tried your notions out—put your funniness into action, with real dollars up?' He came back: 'Yes sir: I have done that:—and what an ingratiating smile he flourished! —'I am going to keep at it right along till, being plenty patient, I prove I'm right.'"

Charlie Palmeter, who in those days was a Produce Exchange plunger, gave young Mr. Ward a nickname that stuck: Futurv Ferdinand.

"To all of us he seemed a lusty, good natured boy, an amiable visionary who had landed in an accidental prominence as General Grant's partner. That he was evil dispositioned not one of us ever conceived. . .not till jury evidence heaped higher than the Catskills."

Business As A Profession Discussed In College Book

Westminster Business Department Catalog Is Just Now Off Press

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 12.—"The oldest of the arts, the newest of the professions" is the designation given business in the new 72-page catalog just published by the department of economics and business administration at Westminster college. This designation, taken from the cornerstone of the Harvard university business school, is given in that part of the booklet entitled "Why Collegiate Education for Business?".

"If one were to analyze any of the other professions," this division of the booklet states, "he would discover that in the main there are six criteria or characteristics present in each, which are as follows: 1, Necessity of the function; 2, Expert knowledge required; 3, Confession of facts on the part of the client; 4, Prolonged period of formal training; 5, Receipt of services instead of commodities; 6, Predominant motives being other than profit.

"If applied economics (business administration) be tested by the above criteria of a profession, it will be seen that business is not yet on a par with the older professions, but that in the main it is not only possible to elevate economics to a plane worthy of the term profession but that such a trend is already evident.

"Thus the professionalizing of business and the elevation of all worthy economic pursuits to a plane of dignity and respectability, together with the elevation of the family income beyond $2,000, in which 86 per cent of our present population now exists, as well as making business education socially useful is the goal of collegiate training in economics and business administration."

Features of the new four-year course leading to the bachelor of business administration degree are pointed out in the second part of the new catalog. These features of the Westminster department are: The Harvard case system, executive approach, separate departmental library, laboratory method of study and teaching, supervised study, coordinated work and study, teacher preparation, two-year secretarial course, trips to business plants and organizations, class talks by business leaders, personnel study, comprehensive examinations after four years, degree in business administration, extra curricular activities and graduate placement.

Courses outlined to be offered next year include 24 separate studies. These are: accounting, salesmanship, advertising, secretarial, statistics, advanced accounting, market management, industrial management, finance, economic theory, economic history, economic geography, business law, business English, commercial mathematics, auditing, retail store management, factory management, bank management, corporation finance, investments, insurance, public utilities, international economics and certified public accountancy.

Entrance requirements for the department of economics and business administration include three units of English, two units of mathematics, one unit of history, and any nine other high school credits. Students who have more than four "D" grades in their high school work are required, in this case as well as in all departments of the college, to take entrance examinations. Those who have acceptable grades are admitted on certificate without examination.

Dr. T. A. Lambie Gives Lecture At Westfield Church

Most interesting to the members of the Westfield Presbyterian congregation was the lecture of Dr. T. A. Lambie, of Abyssinia, when he appeared before them Sunday evening, with four reels of moving pictures which he had taken in Abyssinia.

The first reel depicted the coronation of the ruler of the nation and showed the pomp and glory of such a ceremony, the other reels depicted the life and customs of the native tribes and the story of the pictures was told by Dr. Lambie.

Dr. Lambie was a former missionary to the Sudan under the United Presbyterian board, but he is now in Abyssinia and is connected with no denomination. When Dr. Lambie, his wife and two children first went to Abyssinia they were the only white people there for two years, but now the station has grown to a great extent and there are over 100 workers.

The Lambies are spending their furlough at New Wilmington and expect to return to their work in September.

OLDER THAN PHARAOS

VIENNA—Remains of an ancient Egyptians, older than that the Pharaos were discovered by the Austrian excavations in Egypt, undertaken last year by the Vienna Academy of Sciences with the financial help of an American banker, Albert Rothbart. The scientific leaders of the expedition were Professor C. Menghin, director of the Prehistoric Institute, and Professor Junker. Their report, recently published, estimates their findings to be at least 7000 years old.

A risk no woman should take health risk in ill-made substitutes for Kotex

NO woman should deliberately risk health by using a sanitary pad of doubtful hygienic value. Yet that is what you do, if you accept a substitute because it merely looks like Kotex.

You should ask how this substitute was made. Where? By whom? Would a hospital use it?

Trust no pad that cannot answer these questions to your entire satisfaction. Every woman, at these times, needs the purity of Kotex. Its absolute immaculacy. Kotex is made with hospital care. Its use in hospitals proves that. This assurance is worth everything to you—far more than the few pennies you may save by accepting a substitute of whose makers you know nothing.

Kotex is adjustable. Soft. May be worn on either side with safety.

FIRE INSURANCE THE BULWARK OF TRADE

THE volume of trade in the United States is estimated at more than 80 billion dollars annually. Probably 90 percent of this is transacted on credit.

The underlying safeguard of credit is Stock Fire Insurance, with more than 150 billions of dollars constantly at risk in the protection of property in this country against fire losses, with an almost equal amount covering hail, windstorm, earthquake and other hazards.

This background of protection against disaster makes commerce on its present gigantic scale possible.

The Silent Partner of Everyone

Few indeed are the activities of the home or of business that are not benefited directly or indirectly by the stabilizing effect of Stock Fire Insurance and the security that it affords.

Stock Fire Insurance is the silent partner in every enterprise—the Bulwark of Trade. It has rendered its service at a cost which on the average has constantly declined for many years.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

has also contributed in many ways to the greater safety of life and property. Its sponsors believe that the foremost gain to any individual or community lies in preventing those losses which no amount of insurance can cover.

Rescue Mission Closes Campaign

Rev. C. A. Blackmore Preaches Parting Message To Large Congregation Sunday

Jubilee Singers Sing Their Farewell In Original Song And Negro Spirituals

The evangelistic campaign, which has been conducted by the City Rescue Mission, Ben J. Watkins, superintendent, came to a close with the Sunday evening service, when every available seat in the First Baptist church was filled to hear Rev. C. A. Blackmore deliver his farewell sermon. His message dealt with a Mother's Day theme and was presented in a beautiful manner which reached each heart in the vast assemblage.

The jubilee singers outshone themselves as for the last time in the city their well blended voices rang out in the Negro spirituals, which can only be sung by the colored race in the way they should be. Their farewell number was one of their own composition.

At the close of the service there were a number of persons made their decision to go on the side of Christ and prayers were offered for them.

The Saturday evening program of the Jubilee Singers was witnessed by every person who could possibly find standing room in the church and Sunday school room and balcony of the church.

The plantation scene, with the splendid spirituals rolling forth from the working slaves as they ked the cotton, was most realistic and in addition to the song, the members of the quartet displayed their talent also in the readings they gave.

Rev. C. A. Blackmore lauded The New Castle News for the splendid co-operation the Rescue Mission had in publicity of the services and said that in his more than twenty years in this kind of work, never had he been in a city where the newspapers co-operated so heartily with him and the movement which he represents.

French Youth, Studying Hotels, Visits Castleton

Max Percepied, son of a prominent Paris hotel owner who is in the United States studying the American hotel system is an interesting visitor at The Castleton where he will spend the next few days, observing methods at the local institution.

Mr. Percepied has been in the United State for the past year during most of which time, he has been located at the Hotel Lexington in New York, one of the chain of the American Hotels System of which the Castleton is also a member.

There is quite a difference between the European and American hotel systems, Mr. Percepied states. In France, particularly, the hotels seem to cater more to the cuisine, while in the United States, administration is more keenly stressed.

This is his first visit to the United States he having but recently completed his college education, after which he served the compulsory time in the army.

By a strange co-incidence, he had spent the last days of his army training at Camp DeSouge, a big artillery camp located just outside Bordeaux, where several New Castle boys were stationed during the World War, for a time, and he had quite a time reminiscing with one of the News representatives who had been located at Camp DeSouge. G. Wilfred Thomas, Francis, Gallagher and Charles E. Allen were among some of the local boys who saw part of their overseas service at this camp.

Mr. Percepied had been attending the meeting of the Hotel Managers of the American Hotels System at Ithica, N. Y., which was also attended by John Slack, manager of The Castleton and John M. Crandall, assistant manager of The Lexington in New York. Mr. Crandall was formerly stationed at the Pennbeaver hotel in Beaver Falls and is an intimate friend of Mr. Slack's, so when he returned from the meeting Sunday, Mr. Crandall and Mr. Percepied accompanied him.

Monday afternoon he was introduced to the intricacies of the Field Club course, Mr. Percepied being an enthusiastic golfer.

He plans to return soon to his native land, but expressed the desire to return to the United States and see more of the country, particularly the West, which he will not have an opportunity of visiting before his return.

He was greatly amazed at the height of the New York buildings when he first arrived, and the hustle and bustle of American life, but feels now that he will miss all these things when he returns to his native land.

He expects to put into practice many of the principles he has learned in this country about hotel operation, when he gets back to Paris. His father owns five hotels in the French metropolis, which cater particularly to American trade and he expects to make the Americans feel right at home when they visit there

Boys, More Than Girls, Like Fairy Tales, Says Famous English Authority

Miss Elizabeth Clark, Guest At Convention Here, Is Noted Story Teller

Believes That American Boys Would Prefer To Hear Adventure Stories

ELIZABETH CLARK

Small boys from eight to eleven and naughty small boys at that, make the very best audiences for a story teller. At least that is the experience of Miss Elizabeth Clark, English author, story teller and lecturer on story telling.

Miss Clark has come to New Castle as a guest of Region Three Girl Scout executives, at their twelfth annual convention. She will attend the three day sessions at The Castleton and at the New Castle Field club and will be the speaker at the convention banquet at The Castleton Tuesday evening, at 7:30. Miss Clark was one of the instructors during the three day training period at Camp Dick Victor, last week-end.

Miss Clark will be in United States for two months and she plans to tell stories at Girl Scout gatherings throughout the east and middle west. For the past ten years she has been lecturing to groups of teachers and educators in the university centers of England and Scotland and she has had much experience with children in the play centers abroad, and with groups of Girl Guides.

"I find that boys and girls both adore folk stories, fairy tales and the old legends", says Miss Clark. "Boys, usually those between the ages of eight and eleven, make up the very best audiences. I really think that boys appreciate fairy tales more than girls do. I don't know how boys in this country would enjoy fairy tales, but I have a feeling that perhaps they would rather hear adventure stories. That is just a supposition, of course, and I feel that because American boys live in a country in the making they would prefer tales of adventure, while the boys in the old world, living in a more settled atmosphere, enjoy stories of the past.

"I find folk tales and legendary stories always popular because they offer young people valuable food for thought, folk tales and fairy tales are really just the concentrated extract of human experiences. Told and re-told from one generation to another they embody the uncounicious reasoning and conclusions of those who have listened and those who have told. No tale could survive the test of time which did not appeal to deep-rooted instincts and a certain crude justice.

"A community learns by experience that the boaster, the chatterer and the foolish idle talker are troublesome members even though not as actually harmful as the murderer or the thief. In real life they do not always meet with what is called 'poetic justice' but the folk tale can put them where, in the estimation of their neighbors, they deserve to be."

Miss Clark has told some of her stories before gatherings of Girl Scouts in and about Boston where she found her first American audiences "delightfully fresh and eager."

"This is my first visit to your country", she said, "and I am charmed with the few cities I have already visited and with the people I have met".

They say he is a fluent talker who knows his subject, and that combination is always a good one.

City Musicians Judge 160 Children's Songs Tonight

Original Compositions Written As Part Of Schools Music Celebration

Results Of Contest To Be Announced At Musical Songfest Of 600, Thursday

Meeting in a body this evening, members of the Music Club, composed of city musicians, will judge 160 song compositions written by elementary and junior high students of the city as a part of the city schools celebration of national Music Week. The celebration by the schools here will be climaxed Thursday evening when choruses of 14 elementary schools will compete for honors on the stage of the Ben Franklin Junior high school.

On Thursday evening the results of the song-writing contest, which has occupied the attention of pupils and music instructors for weeks, will be announced from the auditorium stage.

The subjects chosen for the songs which will be judged this evening are the masterpieces with which the children have been familiar thru picture study lessons conducted in their art classes. Miss Emilie H. Salomon, director of art in the schools, has provided the music teachers with a copy of the pictures about which the children of the different grades have written a little verse or poetry and set it to music.

In judging the compositions the members of the Music Club will select the best song written in each grade as well as the best song written for each picture.

Miss Salomon will furnish the Music Club members with copies of the art pictures.

The music revival among school children is being conducted by Miss Gladys Rich, supervisor of the vocal music department. The Music Week program in the Franklin junior high on Thursday evening will include selections by a chorus from each of the elementary schools in the city. Prominent judges have been appointed to select the best primary and the best intermediate chorus appearing on the program.

All music lovers of New Castle are invited to be present on Thursday evening.

No Place to Owe!

We firmly believe that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. We've been looking at the world across a grocery counter too long not to be sure of that. But we haven't been fooled by what's going on outside our store windows . . . We've noticed that most men, on their way home to dinner, have a quick eye for a smart dress or a saucy bonnet.

In short, husbands like to eat fine food and see fine feathers. Which doesn't seem unreasonable to us—except, you know the fuss they make if you run up a bill for them.

Of course, you also know our advice in such matters: If you buy your food for cash at an A & P store, you're sure of the finest food money can buy—and at prices so low you won't have to skimp on your dinners or your dresses to pay for it. You can actually keep all dressed up on what you save in A & P stores—without running into debt for it either.

Directors Review Year's Work Monday Afternoon At Scout Convention Session

Opening Address Given By Miss Elizabeth Reis Of New Castle Organization

Chairman Appoints Conference Committee And Two National Committee Women

Monday from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock that night was one continuous round of pleasurable activity for the over 150 leaders and directors of Girl Scoutdom who are in New Castle for their annual regional convention.

Convention Opens.

It was not until 2 o'clock in the afternoon that the convention sessions actually got under way. The morning hours had been spent in registration, getting settled in The Castleton, arranging exhibits for display, distribution of conference identification badges, chat, introductions, welcoming of guests, making reservations for the various luncheons, dinners, etc.

At 2 o'clock practically all of the women who supervise activities of the hundreds of Girl Scout troops in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia Maryland and District of Columbia had arrived and were gathered in the ballroom of The Castleton for the opening session.

Miss Elizabeth Reis, commissioner of the New Castle Girl Scout troops delivered the welcoming address. In a few words she opened the 12th annual convention in a splendid way, giving a spirtied welcome to the many delegates, in behalf of the hostesses of the occasion, members of the local council.

The reply was given by Mrs. Stuart McGuire, regional chairman, who presided during the afternoon session.

Minutes of the last regional conference, held last year in the city of Philadelphia, were read by Mrs. John Staige Davis, secretary. Mrs. Davis gave interesting outlines of the principal addresses, told of the main business matters discussed and acted upon, the appointments made the invitation forwarded by Miss Elizabeth Reis of New Castle and the decision to have the 12th conference in the city of New Castle.

Conference Committees.

Mrs. Stuart McGuire then appointed the following women to serve on the conference committees: Resolutions committee, Miss Adelaide Rothart of Richmond, Va., Mrs. McDonald of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Lea Powell of Norfolk, Va., and on the committee for the time and place of the next conference, Mrs. Vandling Rose of Scranton, Pa., Mrs Thomas H. Hudson of Uniontown, Pa., and Mrs. B. F. Cheatham of Washington, D. C., were appointed.

These committees will have meetings sometime today and will make their decisions to be presented at Wednesday afternoon's sesion.

Included among the national visitors who were introduced to the congregation on Monday afternoon were Miss Josephine Schain, national director; Miss Ray Mitchell, director of the Kenova region, which includes Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia; Miss Elizabeth Clark of England, and Mrs. Corcoran, director of national publicity.

Many interesting announcements were included in the reports of the regional chairman, Mrs. Stuart McGuire, and the national board representative, Mrs. Henry H. Flather.

Headquarters Change.

Mrs. McGuire announced that the headquarters of region three will in the future be in the national Girl Scout "little house", Washington, D. C. The larger and more central headquarters than those heretofore maintained in the local Girl Scout office at Harrisburg were made necessary by the membership expansion of 18 per cent, which took place in the last year in this region. The arrangements for the new quarters were made by the national office, New York City.

Region three, Mrs. McGuire said, is sharing proportionately in the expansion called for nationally by the Girl Scout five-year development plan initiated some 18 months ago. Three training courses for leaders will be given this summer at camps near Pittsburgh, Harrisburg and Richmond instead of just one as usually given at Harrisburg. Camp May Flather, which is run by the Washington council, has been selected as one of ten throughout the country for the entertainment of foreign Girl Scouts and Girl Guides visiting the United States.

Mrs. Vance McCormick of Harrisburg was appointed regional representative on the national public relations committee and Mrs. William Walker of York was appointed correspondent for the Council Fire, the international Girl Scout and Girl Guide magazine.

Miss Adelaide Werner, regional director, and her assistant, Miss Jean Christy, gave detailed reports of their work in the regional field during the past year.

Make Reports.

These were followed by singing and the report of the Lone Girl Scout troop committee by Mrs. Edward Conrad, chairman. Mrs. Conrad told of the activities in the Lone troops over the region. Questions in regard to matters pertaining to Lone troops were answered after Mrs. Conrad's address.

Mrs. Frederic Ahbe, contact chairman between the federated club women and the Girl Scouts, told of her work since the last conference. She reported scores of new Girl Scout troops organized through the federated clubs.

The meeting was adjourned after a few announcements by Mrs. Stuart McGuire, chairman. Mrs. McGuire stated that commencing on Tuesday morning and continuing until the close of the conference, daylihgt saving time will be observed.

Several telegrams were read and the announcement was made that Mrs. Walter Rothchild of New York City, who was to have been in charge of the discussion at today's morning session, and who is chairman of the national camp committee, will be unable to come to New Castle, because of illness in her family, and that Mrs. Kate Lee Johnson of New York City will act in her stead.

At 6 o'clock Monday evening the Girl Scout executives gathered at the Field club for dinner and their evening session.

ON PROGRAM

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke of Washington, D. C., who is among the distinguished guests at the 12th annual regional Girl Scout executives' convention being held in New Castle, is on the program at the New Castle Field Club Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Brooke, who is chairman of the field division of the national Girl Scouts organization, will give a report and discussion of the national quota at 2:30 p. m. In the evening of Tuesday Mrs. Brooke will be at the head of the table reserved for finance committees at the convention dinner.

The field division, of which Mrs. Brooke is chairman, acts as an advisory and service bureau to the 12 geographical regions into which the country has been divided for administrative purposes.

Mrs. Brooke has been associated with the Girl Scout movement for more than 10 years. She joined the Washington council in 1919 and has occupied the positions of vice president, member of the national executive committee and member of the finance committee. She has an intimate knowledge of field problems gathered from her experience as chairman of the region which is having its annual convention at this time in New Castle—region three, which includes Washington, D. C., Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Virginia.

Abandonment Of Passenger Train Meets Opposition

Mercer Council Petitions State In Proposed Abandonment Of Service

MERCER, Pa., May 12—City Solicitor L. R. Richard has forwarded to the Public Service Commission of the state today the text of the resolution passed by the city council asking that the commission refuse to consider the petition of the Pennsylvania Railroad to take off the sole passenger train on the road operating between New Castle and Stoneboro.

The resolution reads:: "The apparent object is to make the operation (of trains) as unprofitable as possible in order to impress on the Public Service Commission its loss of revenue from said operation due to its present and repeated efforts to be relieved of all passenger service over said road."

The resolution also calls attention to the fact that farmers will be deprived of a method of shipping their produce that valuable franchises along the right of way will be of no use to the people who granted them.

The resolution also denies the petition of the company that other services will replace the train.

The nobody is fortunate at that. It isn't front page news when somebody calls him a liar.

Big Reunion Is Looked Forward To By Consistory

Ladies Day On Friday Will Be Terminated By Dinner Party In Evening

One of the most interesting reunions yet held is being looked forward to by members of the New Castle Consistory, A. A. S. R., which will be held at The Cathedral Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 20, 21 and 22.

Ladies day will be observed as usual on Friday, May 22, and an elaborate program is being prepared for the occasion. The day will be culminated by the customary dinner party. Harry C. Urmson, who is chairman in charge of the entertainment, has secured the Allegheny College Glee club from Meadville, under the direction of Prof. Luvaas, to furnish the program for the evening.

This talented musical organization will stage its program in the auditorium and will be assisted by Dr. Church of Allegheny college at the pipe organ. An exceptionally large turnout of Meadville members is expected.

Miss Martha Bigley has been selected to head the committee for the entertainment of the visiting ladies on this day and is making arrangements to make it one of the big features of the reunion. Visiting ladies will be taken on auto tours of the city and in addition there will be teas and cards for those who enjoy this form of entertainment.

Commander-in-Chief Walter S. Reynolds and other officers of the several bodies are looking forward to a most successful reunion. In spite of the present depression, it is believed that there will be a large class present to receive the degrees.

Yet the fellow who is strong for a five-day week will make an exception in favor of seven-day vacation ones.—The Oakland Tribune.

BEAR FACTS

(International News Service)

NORTH TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—The bear facts about Fuzzy are that he became a littel dissatisfied with the soft life, living on a rug in a stable at Miss Lillian Weaver's seminary, a girls' boarding school. So the 165-pound mite of a bear wandered off to see the world. Police searched for him on the Pocantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller, but they couldn't find him.

Believe Air Fleet Plans Are Changed; No Stop Here Likely

Efforts to secure further information concerning the proposed stop of the fleet of U. S. army planes at Bradford field in this county, some time later this month, has been fruitless.

No confirmation of the statements given to the press through the Postal Telegraph company, from the New York office, of the announcement of the war department that apparently part of the planes were to make a stop at the local airport can be secured.

In fact, later investigation i cates that there probably has b mistake in the designation o field by some of the authorities and it is now believed that the field should have been one at New Castle, Delaware.

No further information has been received here and no preparation is being made for the arrival of the planes, due to the mixup that has developed following the original announcement. Either the plans have been changed or a mistake was made in the original designation of the field, and the New Castle, Del., field should have been designated.

D. Roy Bradford, proprietor of the New Castle airport, is now convinced that a mistake of some kind has been made, and does not anticipate that the planes will make a stop here.

Some of the planes flying between ork and Chicago may go over port, but apparently the stop is not to be made.

Excellent Work Done By Community League

ELLWOOD CITY, May 12.—Ever since the Community Service league has been organized in our city, it has rendered valuable assistance to the unfortunate ones of our community.

One really has to be acquainted with the work of this great organization to appreciate the work they are doing for those who go to them for aid.

The Community Service league knows no race nor creed in their work, giving the best that is in them at all times and what more can one expect when you are asked to perform duties for our good Ellwood City, so that it may look up and say that we take care of our own cases.

Here is a brief outline of some of the work that this organization is doing:

Social adjustment: This refers to cases such as a family in need of food, clothing, doctors, fuel, hospital, unemployment and a good many other necessities.

Then there is the American Red Cross.

Travelers Aid.

Health work: Baby health conferences, infants, school children, tuberculosis dispensary, nurse visiting homes, medical aid, tonsil operations, etc.

Fresh air camp. This camp has been a great help to the children of the city; they have enjoyed the privileges of this camp. It has been a health resort to those unfortunate ones. The camp has taken care of 35 children for eight weeks at no cost to the parents.

The Community Service league has been doing whatever in its power to decrease the number of unfortunates. The total number of contacts during the year is 3585. The social adjustment cases number 1,446. This alone explains how the money is being spent by the Community Service league.

Give to the Community Chest, if you don't they cannot carry on this great work.

Honor Award Is Changed At High

ELLWOOD CITY, May 12.—Due to a ruling of the school board, Lulu Mary Smith of Wampum will not be the salutatorian at the commencement exercises as was formerly planned. The rule states that the valedictorian and salutatorian must have attended the local high school for four years. Miss Smith is only a one year student here and is therefore ineligible for the honor.

This arrangement causes the next highest student in line to be the salutatorian, who is Virginia Wiley. William Bayers is the valedictorian. Plans for the baccalaureate and commencement exercises have been completed and will be carried out as expected.

Blocher-Rearic Wedding At Noon

Ceremony Is Performed At Home Of Bride, Mr. And Mrs. P. W. Blocher

The bride was dressed in a white lace gown fashioned in the prevailing vogue and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lillies of the valley. Miss Mary Blocher, sister of the bride played the Lohengrin wedding march, as the bride and bridegroom, unattended took their places before the altar. Rev. Blair Claney of Pittsburgh, an uncle of bride performed the ceremony.

After the services, a wedding breakfast was served to the wedding party and a few special guests, Mrs. R. C. Science Strides Shown In "Tech" 1931 Exhibition

Immense X-Ray Tubes Are Among Newest Scientific Inventions

By JAMES E. HILEMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Cal., May. 12.—California Institute of Technology exhibited proof of progress in the field of science at its annual exhibition.

Research at the institute has included many subjects of vital interest to scientists throughout the world. Its greatest achievement probably were realized in the construction of the two giant 1,000,000-volt X-ray tubes designed by C. C. Lauritsen, scientist. They are housed in an immense concrete vault and sheeted inside with two inches of lead to absorb the powerful stray rays.

The tubes have aided scientists in research with G-rays for the long sought solution of a cancer cure. One of the tubes has been used solely in the study of cancer treatment.

Other scientific wonders created by scientists at the institute are a mechanical likeness of a human heart, which beats and functions similar to an actual heart. It has enabled scientists to make entensive study of the heart.

Artificial lightning startled onlookers by the terrific roar and crackling of the five-foot bolts of electricity, powerful enough to burn a human being to a crisp in an instant.

A large collection of rare scientific books were shown at the institute's library. Its biological building contained a varied collection of 1,000,000 year old bones, skeletons of gigantic living prehistoric animals. Many of the bones, had been assembled into complete skeletons.

Millions of bottled insects were on display. The assortment included bugs of almost every known species.

The newly completed 200-inch telescope which was expected to enable astronomers at the Mt. Wilson Observatory to photograph vast uncharted regions of the milky way, was exhibited for the first time. The gigantic eye probably will be moved to the observatory at Mt. Wilson. The telescope now at the observatory measures 100 inches across its lens.

Among other objects of scientific interest were the new $1,000,000 student buildings which house elaborate machinists, and other equipment necessary in construction of X-ray apparatus, telescopes and other mechanical devices used at the institute.

Astonishing experiments with liquid air were presented in the physics laboratory. The wind tunnel operated in the Guggenheim Areonautical laboratory also provided much interest for spectators.

Research Foundation Of Franklin Institute Works On Age Of Earth

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Experiments expected to lead to a method of determining the exact age of the earth are being conducted here by the Bartol Research Foundation of Franklin Institute, according to Dr. W. F. G. Swann, director of the foundation.

Basis of the experiments is the examination of uranium, a radioactive metal usually found in association with radium. Uranium once existed in large quantities but has "decayed" into lead, according to scientists at the foundation, and is now found in but small quantities.

As soon as the rate of "decay" of uranium is determined, it is believed, scientists will be able to determine the age of the earth.

STANDARD RATING SCALE
for Electric Refrigeration

- Is the refrigerator manufactured by a reliable company with proper experience in the electric refrigeration field?
- Has it plenty of food and shelf space?
- Is the cabinet itself well designed, sturdily built and properly insulated?
- Is there provision for the freezing of an adequate supply of ice cubes? (Quantity of ice rather than number of cubes, which may be of large or small size, should be taken into consideration.)
- Will the refrigerator constantly maintain a proper temperature for the preservation of foods?
- Can the freezing of ice cubes and desserts be speeded up when the need arises?

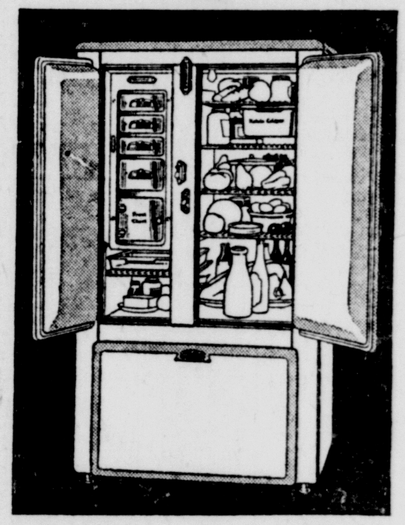
INVEST IN AN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR



The Kelvinator line includes models priced from $174.50, f.o.b. factory, upward. Any one of these may be purchased on the ReDisCo Monthly Budget Plan.

A 3 YEAR GUARANTEE

- Can this extra freezing speed for ice cubes be had without affecting the temperature on the food shelves? (Too low a temperature on the shelves will, of course, injure food.)
- Is there a place to keep ice cream, meat, fish, game, "quick frosted" foods or extra ice cubes indefinitely at a below freezing temperature?
- Are these various temperatures (a. extra fast freezing; b. fast freezing; c. below freezing for storage; and d. normal food preservation temperature) automatically maintained without any attention from the owner?
- Does the refrigerating unit operate often or infrequently? (The fewer "stops" and "starts" the longer the unit will last and the less it costs to run.)
- How long will the cooling unit continue to cool the refrigerator even though the current is shut off? (Refrigeration should continue for 10 or 12 hours.)
- Can the back parts of all shelves, even the lowest, be reached without kneeling or sitting down?
- Has provision been made for keeping vegetables fresh and crisp?
- Can the refrigerator top be used to "set things down for a moment" while the contents of the cabinet are being rearranged?
- Will the refrigerator add to the attractiveness of the kitchen?
- Has the experience of users over a long period of years proved the refrigerator long-lived and dependable?

Now—with the Standard Rating Scale—you can choose electric refrigeration like an expert. You can go straight through single unimportant "features" to those essential advantages that mean lasting satisfaction. You weigh all the facts. Hay Fever Victims Should Start Treatments At Once

"The old saying that 'Coming events cast their shadows before' can be logically applied to the green of the spring and the hay fever of the summer. And while an interest in this matter is restricted to a comparatively small portion of Pennsylvania's citizens, when considered in connection with the whole population, it nevertheless comprises a group of at least several hundred thousand. To these persons, measures to prevent this condition should represent a very vital question indeed" said Doctor Theodore B. Appel, State Secretary of Health, today.

"However, being human, many sufferers from this periodic affliction are prone to delay visiting their physician until this onset has occurred. And while alleviating remedies can at that time be employed, the wise person will anticipate the attack and apply the prinicple expressed by the words, 'prevention is better than cure.'

"Science has made marvelous strides in the last quarter of a century or more. And in the field of bacteriology the pace has been exceedingly rapid. The point however is that medical progress to some extent must rely upon the enthusiasm of the public if the best and most general results are to be obtained.

"In this connection, it appears that eagerness to adopt new methods is not by any means a universal characteristic. For example, it may be surprising to some to learn that despite the indisputable values of smallpox vaccination and toxin-antitoxin for diphtheria, there are even yet people in Pennsylvania who have to be shown; and when this attempt is made by health officials, they close their eyes tightly.

"It is no wonder then that many still look upon the use of pollen extracts for the prevention of hay fever as a new fangled idea, and consequently fails to capture either their interest or confidence. And frankly, for the vast majority of persons such an attitude, while unprogressive, makes little or no difference. Not being victims of hay fever, the matter at best to them is purely academic. But this decidely is not the case where the person is a sufferer.

"However, assuming that doubt as to the efficacy of pollen extracts does not exist, the prospective subject at this time display an active interest in it. The protection which pollen injections can give demands time to establish itself. Treatment should begin at least five or six weeks before the expected onset. A fair percentage of failures to secure results by this method can be attributed to the fact that treatments are not started sufficiently in advance of the hay fever season.

"It is therefore suggested that the hay fever victim should see his physician now. Give the medical man the extract a real chance to detour this uncomfortable visitation. It will pay to take time by the forelock."

South Seas Follies Beauty

Florenz Ziegfeld, well known for his "glorified" girls, has gone 'way to the South Seas to get his latest example of the feminine face and figure divine. Reri, shown on left, in her native dress, is contrasted sharply on the right, where the beautiful Polynesian enacts the role of an American miss to perfection. Reri was discovered on the Isle of Bora Bora by a movie producer seeking a star for his picture, "Tabu." The new addition to the Follies knows no English, but speaks French.

Eugene Ysaye Is Called By Death

World Famous Violinist Is Taken By Death At His Home In Brussels

(International News Service)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 12.—Eugene Ysaye, the world famous violinist, died at his home here today.

Ysaye had been in failing health for some time, and some anxiety was felt for him early this year. His death, however, came unexpectedly.

The immediate cause of death was heart failure. Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians, who visited the violinist regularly during his illness, was the first to pay homage to his memory.

The violinist is survived by his widow, the daughter of Dr. Hermann Dincin, a physician of Brooklyn, New York, whom he married in 1927.

Miss Dincin was his second wife. He was first married in 1886 to a daughter of the late General Bourdan De Courtray. She died in 1924.

Ysaye was born in Liege, Belgium, on July 15, 1858. He was educated at the Liege conservatory and later under Wieniowski in Brussels and Vieutemps in Paris. His distinguished musical career included four years as conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra. He concluded this engagement in 1922.

District Pythians Gather Last Night

Each Lawrence County Lodge Sends Representative To Meeting

A district meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodges of Lawrence county was held in the Castle Hall of Robert Blum Lodge No. 466, East street, last evening with a large number of Pythians in attendance. District Deputy Clell Springer was in charge of the meeting and announced that the lodges would visit Slippery Rock lodge, Butler county, on Thursday evening, May 28th.

Four Escape As Auto Overturns

Ronald Wimer, and the Misses Eva Wimer, and Emma and Irene Stewart of this city, had a narrow escape from serious injury, when their car overturned on the Butler road, near the home of State Senator Weingartner, Saturday evening.

Mr. Wimer, who was driving the machine, swerved his car to avoid colliding with a machine which had stopped abruptly ahead of him. The car struck the rear of the other machine and was hurtled against the bank, where it overturned, alighting on its top. The occupants had to crawl from the machine through a window.

Aside from minor bruises and cuts, they were uninjured.

Bond Measure Is Being Delayed

It is quite evident that councilmen have adopted a passive policy in regard to the proposed ordinance that would increase the bond indebtedness of the city $100,000. The bill was presented weeks ago and was passed on two readings. It was to have been called up a third time but a member of council was absent when the date arrived and the bill reposes in committee.

If the bill is passed it is proposed to employ the money to make improvements here which would aid employment.

Several of the councilmen have been asked when the bill would be called up for a final vote but no one apparently cared to state the time.

Recreation Board Meets This Month

Councilman L. G. Genkinger today stated that it will not be long before he calls a meeting of the municipal recreation board. At the meeting a supervisor will be named and instructors appointed. The playgrounds will open after public school is dismissed for the summer vacation.

Inoculate For Typhoid Before Trip

Proportion Of Preventable Deaths Is Increasing

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Three notable deaths in the last month—those of Arnold Bennett, Knute Rockne and Nicholas Longworth—give the medical mind cause for reflection. Each one had a pitiful and poignant quality, not only on account of the genuine reality of the character of each man, the true affection and regard in which they were held by people who did not know them, but also because of the comparatively early age of death in each case. From fifty to sixty-five is too premature in this age, when we are constantly told of the increase in longevity.

Arnold Bennett, ironically for a modern man, died of a medieval disease—typhoid fever. For thirty years there has been no reason why anyone should die of it. It is preventable not only by public supervision of water supply but individually for any one person by taking a series of preventive inoculations. That so well informed, intelligent, thoroughly up-to-date and down-to-the minute a person as Arnold Bennett should succumb to this outmoded plague is a double lesson. First, you are apt to get careless. You live so long and so safely in this age of successful hygiene that you forgot to take advantage of the available methods to prevent disease. Arnold Bennett acquired his typhoid fever while visiting in France. When you go traveling—abroad or at home—you think "Oh, well. I have had a typhoid inoculation. I guess I'm all right. I haven't heard of anybody having a case of typhoid fever now for a long time. Pass it up this time."

The second lesson is that although diseases like typhoid are getting scarcer and scarcer they never disappear. Smallpox breaks out every once in a while lying dormant somewhere until favorable conditions arise—the most favorable condition in the case of both typhoid and smallpox being an unvaccinated population.

Knute Rockne met his death on the contrary, not by any archaic means, but in a thoroughly modern manner. It is worth pointing out that in this small census of the most notable deaths in the last few weeks one-third of them was caused by transportation accidents. The rate of death from such causes is rising more rapidly than the death rate from heart disease and cancer combined. For their prevention we have the means and we have the knowledge and we have the facilities. Apparently life is so cheap that rather than enforce such preventive measures we are content to leave the chances to fate.

Bennett's death and Rockne's death were entirely preventable, then. In the fact of Speaker Longworth's death from pneumonia we can only confess complete powerlessness. There is no method of vaccination or inoculation known to prevent pneumonia. It is impossible to suppose that a man in Speaker Longworth's position did not take every precaution and care about his health known to medicine. But these availed nothing to keep him from catching one of the most treacherous plagues of our time.

But that we are able to say that two-thirds of three notable deaths were preventable is an indication of the advancement of our knowledge. The time will certainly come when we will be able to increase this proportion.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and and Constipation" "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

How To Support Hospital

One of the best ways to support your hospital is to use it. Jameson Memorial Hospital is prepared to care for you—tenderly, skillfully and economically. Your doctor may hesitate to suggest hospital study of your condition because you may be one of many who has the mistaken impression that doctors have a sixth, seventh and eighth sense of chemical analysis, X-ray introspection and microscopic vision.

Your hospital does not practice medicine. It takes no patients of its own. Its purpose in its business of care of the sick is to assist doctors to detailed understanding of the exact condition of their patients in order that the condition may be treated. The patient is frequently satisfied with treatment of symptoms of disorder while in many instances the doctor would prefer treatment of the disorder itself. When your doctor suggests "Hospital", follow his suggestion. His purpose is to assist you to return of health through use of some facility which your hospital provides.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

It is now about 35 years since the sixth ward of the city, as it is now known, had a separate corporate existence as a borough. In the period of time that it was a borough it was known as West New Castle. It maintained a complete borough government and had its fire and police protection and also maintained its school system and was one of the most enterprising of the several boroughs that at one time had their existence in this section.

Among the burgesses that headed its government in that time were William P. Miller, I. B. Griffiths, James G. Fulkerson, Robert W. Douds and William Moncrief. Mr. Moncrief was the last burgess of the borough prior to its annexation to the city of New Castle.

Home Furnishings of Comfort and Beauty Essential to Happy Homes

That a persons's environment and surroundings have a direct influence on his life is an idea fast becoming universal.

It is now recognized that the furnishing of a house has become as important as the building of the house itself. A comfortable, cheery room naturally tends to make the occupants of the room comfortable and cheery also, whereas one that is stiff and gloomy has the opposite effect exactly. It has been said that a cheerless and dark dining room ruins more digestions than rich food ever did. So when a person's mental state is so closely correlated with the things that are about him it is of immense importance that he be surrounded with only what tends toward his comfort and his pleasure.

It does not necessarily take a great sum of money to furnish a home in the best of taste. There are too many really beautiful homes that have been done with comparatively small expense that prove this, and it is the taste to recognize the fitness and to hunt the correct things that bring true harmony.

Survey Shows Shenango And Beaver Tonnage

Huge Amount Of Freight Would Be Available For River Transportation

WOULD DOUBLE TRAFFIC IN OHIO

Survey of tonnage on the Beaver and Shenango Rivers just completed by the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango Rivers Improvement Association and the New Castle Chamber of Commerce shows enormous tonnage for slackwater navigation on these two rivers in this district.

These tonnage figures were secured in the form of signed statements from plant managers located along these two rivers and are as follows:

Inbound tonnage 1,207,997 tons.

Estimated outbound tonnage 3,494,627 tons.

Interplant tonnage 226,000 tons.

All of this is independent of coal tonnage which is as follows: coaking coal, steam coal and domestic coal and coke 2,903,154 tons.

The above inbound tonnage, estimated outbound tonnage and interplant tonnage, which is independent of coal, together with the tonnage of coaking, steam and domestic coal and domestic coke make a grand total of 7,831,778 tons of traffic available for water transportation between Beaver, Pa., and Greenville, Pa., via the Beaver and Shenango Rivers, the survey shows.

On the Beaver and Shenango Rivers there is a consumption of coaking coal alone of 1,333,204 tons, and in as much as it requires one and one half tons of coal to produce a ton of coke, this is the equivalent of 1,999,806 tons of coal, which will be transported on these two rivers when the slackwater development is completed, the heads of the River Association predict.

When it is considered that at least $1.00 per ton on coal is saved on transportation costs by water transportation, this one commodity alone will save the industrial cities located on the Beaver and Shenango Rivers, nearly $2,000,000 annually, they assert.

The survey just completed further shows that the total population effected along these two rivers is 183,339 souls and the real estate assessed valuation of the cities and communities immediately adjacent to the Beaver and Shenango Rivers is $141,643,546.

All of the above figures have been secured through signed statements from industrial officials located along these rivers and population census and assessed valuations were taken from reports that are up to date and are reliable.

These figures are entirely independent of those which would apply to the Mahoning River from the junction of the Beaver and Mahoning at New Castle Junction to Warren, Ohio.

The vast savings effected by water transportation on these rivers alone officials of the Beaver, Mahoning, and Shenango Rivers Improvement Association, state would economically justify the expenditure of moneys necessary on the part of the Federal Government to develop slackwater navigation on the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango Rivers.

Including these figures with those secured for the Mahoning River from New Castle Junction to Warren, Ohio, the tonnage available for transportation by water, when the slackwater navigation project is completed on the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango Rivers, is approximately 28,000,000 tons annually, which tonnage will approximately double that now being transported on the Ohio River and is nearly equal to the tonnage being transported through the Panama Canal.

Backers of this slackwater navigation development state that it directly affects and means the future life of this vast steel-producing area of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, which is the third largest steel-producing area in the United States, and is practically the only steel-producing district of the country which does not now enjoy water transportation. The securing of this slackwater transportation development in addition to the acquiring of the Pymatuning Dam, which will furnish adequate water supply for industrial and municipal purposes in this district, will make this entire region of which New Castle is the center, one of the most prosperious industrial districts in the United States.

A MAN WHO KNOWS

What he believes must do some hard thinking.

Too much about too many things is a poor adviser.

By experience seldom has to quote authorities.

The price of things may not know the value of things.

You best may prove to be your worst enemy.

The truth bears a heavier responsibility than he who knows not.

Plan To Install "Talkie" Machine In State Hospital

(International News Service)

DANVILLE, Pa., May 12.—The "talkies" are to be drafted for service in treating patients at the Danville State Hospital for Mental Diseases.

On May 21, trustees of the hospital will open bids for equipment for presentation of sound pictures, which will be shown in the hospital chapel several times a week. Equipment to be purchased includes a screen, projection booth and acoustical furnishings.

Silent movies have long been a part of the hospital's activities and their value in treatment of mental ills has been repeatedly demonstrated. It is believed sound pictures, adding to interest of patients in the films, will prove more effective as a means of diverting their attention from a fixed train of thought and turning it into more pleasant channels.

Lancaster County Onetime Infested With Big Animals

(International News Service)

LANCASTER, Pa., May 12.—Lancaster county might not have been such a pleasant place in the really "good old days" members of the Roddy Nature club decided after an address by Dr. H. Justin Roddy, founder of the club and curator of the Franklin and Marshall college museum.

For back in those days, Dr. Roddy said, the imperial elephant, largest ever known and with a temper to fit his size, roamed the county and made it his home. Bones of mammoth beasts have been found in the county, Dr. Roddy said. Wild horses also ranged the district around Lancaster, the curator told his audience, but disappeared under the tsetse fly, which carries the germ of the dread "sleeping sickness."

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 17 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

"Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to greater activity.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince anyone."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drugstore in America. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. To help reduce swiftly cut out pastry and fatty meats and go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., New Castle Drug Co., McKee's Kut Rate, knows all about Kruschen.

Coast Officials Making Progress In Murder Cases

Two Men Are Held On Slaying Charges—Missing Girl Returns Home

TIRE MARKS MAY PROVE GOOD CLUE

San Diego's Carnival Of Crime Has Baffled Police Many Weeks

(International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 12.—Progress was reported by authorities in the investigation of San Diego's numerous recent murders.

Richard Ward, alias Jack McVane, 56, escaped convict from Folsom Prison, was held as an important suspect in the murder of 10-year-old Virginia Brooks and Kindred slayings.

Moss E. Garrison, 37, was under a formal charge of stabbing to death his sweetheart, Hazel Bradshaw, 22, pretty "Hello Girl."

Another mystery was cleared up with the return to her home of Louise Kesler, 17, business college student, who had been missing since Friday. She told a story of having been kidnaped, held prisoner and mistreated by two men. Juvenile authorities were assigned to the case.

Clues Uncovered

A possible clew to the Brooks murder was seen by police in the fact that the word "Virginia" was scrawled on a blotter in Ward's three room shack in the Los Dois canyon, 40 miles from San Diego.

It was learned that McVane had traded a set of high pressure tires for a set of balloons, to be used on his small car. The tire marks where Virginia's body was found were made by high pressure tires.

Hoping to check Ward's recent movements, authorities sought to learn the identity of two men who were seen to visit his cabin in the canyon only a few hours before it was raided Sunday.

Arraigned Today

The formal complaint against Garrison, a railroad clerk, was issued at the state's attorney's office after a coroner's jury found that "evidence points strongly" to him.

Garrison was expected to enter a plea of not guilty when arraigned today.

Appearing before the jury, Edith Bradshaw, 19, sister of Hazel, testified that several months ago Hazel told her; "I want to quit Garrison, but I'm afraid he will kill me."

Book Reports On Lions' Convention

Tells New Castle Club Of Activities At Reading Gathering

Lion Earl E. Book, one of the New Castle Lions club's official delegates to last week's state convention of Pennsylvania's 95 or more clubs at Reading, reported the two-day sessions in a 35-minute speech before the local club members, meeting in the Elks club early this afternoon.

Mr. Book attended the convention with Charles E. Streib, another delegate. Mr. Streib was unable to present a report today.

Preliminary arrangements for the annual election of officers of the club were made when President Earl T. Ramsey named Lions B. K. Thacker, E. D. Porter, John McNeill, W. H. Hodgkinson and Dr. A. H. Borland as a ballot committee to supervise the coming primary. The election will occur June 9.

Two local musical entertainers also appeared before the club in a short performance today.

An invitation from the Arthur McGill P. T. A., inviting the club men to its World Good Will Day program to be held in the Senior high school auditorium on the evening of May 13, was read. It will commemorate the beginning of the first Hague peace conference.

Watt Post Is Host To Many Legionnaires

Greenville Auxiliary Team Conducts An Initiation At The Event

John Watt Post, American Legion, and auxiliary, played the part of host last night to members of Perry S. Gaston Post, and Auxiliary of this city, many Legion officials and members of Legion Posts of the district, at an open meeting held in the home of the post at Mt. Jackson.

Approximately two hundred and fifty people were in attendance and enjoyed the occasion to the utmost. Among the visitors of the occasion were the following prominent members of the American Legion and auxiliary, Mrs. C. V. Homer of Greenville, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, New Castle, District Commander Charles Edwards, District Deputy Commander in Beaver County, Fred Molter, Beaver County Commander Lewis Hennig, Joseph Von Tempo, post commander at Aliquippa, and District Deputy Commander for Lawrence County, Dr. H. H. Rosenthal.

Those in attendance witnessed an initiation ceremony put on by the degree team of the Greenville Auxiliary. There were members of the Legion Posts in Koppel, Aliquippa, Rochester, New Brighton and New Castle in attendance. A considerable group of local post and auxiliary members were among those in attendance.

Announcement was made during the evening that John Watt Post had over 100 members. In recognition of this fact, the post was presented with a Plague given by the state department of the Legion for this remarkable showing. The post is leading all the posts of the state in the percentage of gain in membership this year over the membership of last year.

Watt post has the reputation of being one of the most active and progressive posts of the Legion in the entire state and is becoming widely known through this fact.

SCOUT LEADERS IN CONVENTION AT FIELD CLUB

gion four, which includes troops in the state of Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia, opened this morning's session in the Field club ballroom with an address on "Leaders' Training". She mentioned that never before in the history of Girl Scouting have volunteer leaders been more easily secured than right now—which is itself a very fine example of the way the Girl Scout spirit is spreading.

Girl Scout work is built to appeal to girls of every nature and is designed to build strong, healthy characters, Miss Mitchell stated. She told of the importance of having well trained leaders in the work.

Miss Adelaide Werner, the regional director, made mention of the fact that more leaders had attended the week-end training course this year, held at Camp Dick Victor near Ellwood City, preceding this conference, than had ever attended before. Two years ago at Norfolk, Va., 44 leaders enrolled for training. One year ago at Philadelphia 75 enrolled for the camp training. This year 106 leaders spent the week-end in training, truly a record number.

There were eight members to the week-end training staff, Miss Werner said, and five separate courses were presented, with the following enrollment: Brownie 10, general 24, tramping and trailing 38, troop progress 17, special activities 17.

Twenty-five different communities were represented at Camp Dick Victor, according to Miss Werner's report.

Summer Camping.

Mrs. B. F. Cheatham, chairman of the regional camp committee, addressed the convention on the summer camping subject. She commended Miss Werner and her assistant, Miss Jeanne Christy, in making such a splendid success of the training plans. She presented Mrs. Houston, Mrs. Fuller and Miss Rice of the regional camp committee, and told of the splendid assistance they have been giving her.

Small camps and small units are much better than large camps, according to Mrs. Cheatham, who has made a study of conditions in scores of camps. She finds that large camps can not keep up the necessary standards.

Mrs. Katy Lee Johnson of New York City arrived at the Field club this morning in time to take the place of Mrs. Walter Rothchild, who was unable to attend. Mrs. Johnson and Miss Jeanne Christy read a visitor's report and explained the various questions connected with Girl Scout camps and camping.

Tells of Experience.

The New Castle Field club was the meeting place for Monday's last session, also. The delegates last evening left the convention headquarters, The Castleton, and motored to the Field club for dinner. Miss Josephine Schain, national director, was the speaker of the evening and told many interesting experiences which she has had in her years connection with the Henry Street Settlement in New York City and in her visits in Arabia.

Miss Schain was a delegate to the naval conference in London, and has traveled to many places on the globe, and in last night's address she presented some of her most interesting experiences. She told just what appealed to her most in the Girl Scout program.

A playlet was presented last night after dinner at the Field club by a group of New Castle Girl Scouts. The principal characters were: Peter, Edwina Connery; Wendy, Marion Butler, and Tinker Bell, Georgia Ringer.

County Coroner Rescues Kitten

Risks Life In Getting Stranded Cat From Roof Of The County Jail

County Coroner J. P. Caldwell made a thrilling rescue of a kitten from the roof of the county jail this morning. County Commissioners and a delegation from the Lawrence county Agricultural Association were holding a meeting in the Jury Commissioners room, when the kitten appeared on the roof of the jail, locked wistfully into the jury room and uttered several plaintive "m-e-o-w-s." It touched the heart of the coroner, who opened a window, climbed out on the ledge, and grasped the eves of the jail roof, about four feet distant. Thus suspended over the abyss, he called "kittie, kittie" and the cat came near enough for him to get hold of one front leg. It struggled as he pulled it over the eves of the roof and grasped the coroner's left leg with all four claws, when he pulled it from the roof. County Commissioner P. O. Elder and A. Clyde Shoaf, then came to the rescue and managed to disengage the cat from the coroner's left leg after which it scampered down stairs with not so much as a "thank you." It is not known how kittie got on the roof of the jail.

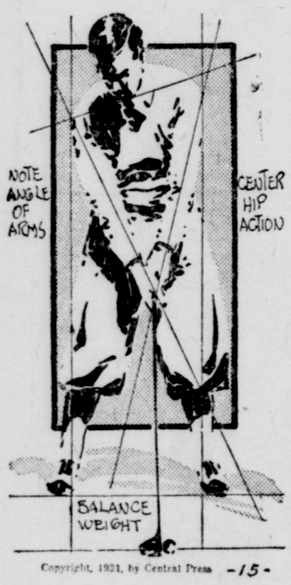
Getting Set For Stance; Here's How You Should Do It

By ROY GROVE
Central Press Golf Writer



Copyright, 1931, by Central Press -15-

NUMBER 15.

The beginner's greatest difficulty with golf is in getting set for the stance.

The common fault with the average player is to let the right hip "stick out" in taking his address.

This starts the body action before the culbhead and develops into a beautiful slice.

The professional will drop his right shoulder in addressing, but never lets the hip get out of control. The weight is balanced evenly on both feet.

The drop of the right shoulder is caused by bringing the right hand and arm over to the grip of the club.

You will note in the illustration how the shoulder action takes place with the hip action, also note where the hands grip the club along the left leg and not in the center of the stance.

The body and head are centered, but the action of the club and arms are off center.

To overcome the awkwardness of this stance, as it may seem to you at first, take the club in the left hand, after you have taken your stance, and then bring the right hand over to meet the left.

Let the left arm and hand do the work in hitting the ball.

Expect Four More Fast Games On Wednesday Night In Second Contests

Hillsville, Wampum, West Pittsburg And Shenango Pottery Look Good

Getting away to a good start on Saturday afternoon with four good games, the Lawrence County Baseball league will resume play on Wednesday evening with four more contests carded.

Hillsville surprised by topping the strong Scarazzos by an 8-4 count on Saturday. The Stone Quarry boys looked impressive and should give the remaining teams in the league a hard fight. Wampum started the league race on the right track by handing the Bessemer representatives a 7-1 trimming. Shenango Pottery played good ball as it tripped the Brent team 8-3. West Pittsburg was credited with the first shut out victory of the season, registering one over the Universals, 6-0.

Hornsby Reconsiders Benching Of Wilson

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, May 12. — Rogers Hornsby, dynamic manager of the Chicago Cubs, today reconsidered plans of benching Hack Wilson, the slugging center fielder who led both leagues in hitting home runs last season but is batting only .270 this year.

"Hack will be out there today and every day," said the Rajah this morning before leaving for the Polo Grounds for the last game of the current series with the Giants this afternoon.

Hornsby qualified his statement, however, with the decleration that he would not hestitate to juggle his players around to strengthen the club.

Firpo-Bruce To Box Here Again

Firpo Agrees To Weigh 156 Pounds For Bison City Boxer

Sam Bruce and Henry Firpo have been matched for a return 10 round bout here according to announcement today. Bruce telegraphed acceptance of the bout when advised that Firpo had agreed to weigh 156 pounds. One week ago they staged a spectacular battle here. Firpo weighed 157 1-2 and Bruce balanced the scales at 151 3-4.

The decision one week ago went to Firpo after the two judges had disagreed. Tommy Jones voted for a draw and George Chip, former middleweight champion, cast his ballot for Firpo. As the result of the disagreement it was necessary for Referee Kennedy to vote and his ballot gave the bout to Firpo.

It was one of the best fights seen here in years and at different times Bruce was shaken from his head to his heels and Firpo was distressed by body blows. Some of the fans believed Bruce should have had a draw but all of them agreed that it was a great battle and worth a return meeting.

Frankie Frey of this city will appear against Howard Webb of Louisville, in a six round semi-final. Webb is said to be a promising 152 pounder and Frey hopes to make a good showing. Frankie has fought Joe Midway and all of the battles in which he has appeared have been filled with action.

Marshal Couette of Cleveland, will oppose Buz Hardy of Beaver Falls. The latter has been training for a week and according to Jack Henry, sports editor of a Beaver Falls newspaper. Marshal is in for plenty of opposition. Hardy is one of the ruggedest boys in the Beaver Valley.

Ray Ritchie will take on Johnny Young of Ashtabula and Nick Adamo will meet Homer Gray. Adamo hasn't milled since Joe Midway laid him low. Gray won from Merle Gibson in his trip to the ring and plenty of action is expected next Monday night.

Clink! Clink! Clink!

Oh, what a siren of simoleons them there movies do sing!

The melody of motion picture money is music to any pair of ears and when these ears happened to be attached to an amateur sport star exploited, ballyhooed, idolized but not paid for many years, the tune is usually too tantalizing to resist.

Don't belittle the sport star who goes movie. If earning a bit of honest coin by playing one's game before a camera is betrayal then traitorous be the fingers tapping out this item; yes, and the eyes, if any, that peruse this column.

Only in Paradise can one live without copius kopecks but you have to work hard to get there.

Fair Mrs. Moody (nee Helen Wills) is the latest amateur tennis brilliant to consider going to Hollywood. As this goes to press Helen is still an amateur, but indications are that it may not be for long.

Mrs. Moody has been playing big time tennis for a long time. In the interests of American net supremacy she has virtually commuted between her California home and Forest Hills, L. I., not to mention many ocean voyages to and from England

Her reward has so far been seeing her picture in the papers and her name in seven-point type in the tennis guide.

Helen, if reports are correct wants about $150,000 to perform for the chattering tintypes. That's quite high, but Helen knows that once she takes a movie job it's good bye please, to her amateur tennis standing.

Laws of amateur tennis regard money made by a player from tennis or its by-products as professionalism. Of course, you can play amateur tennis before large crowds who paid to see you and remain a pure lovely amateur—if the Lawn Tennis association gets the dough and you don't.

It's about time the tennis moguls did something about this business of amateur stars going pro. The possibility of Mrs. Moody becoming lost to amateur tennis, coming on the heels, as it were of the departure of Tilden, Frank Hunter and others from the amateur net ranks presents, for the tennis association, a serious problem.

If the net bosses do not do something about it they may soon find themselves with no real stars to boss. Last year it was discovered how uninteresting a women's national tennis tourney could be without Mrs. Moody's presence. The same goes for Tilden and the men's championship meet.

Sooner or later there is bound to be an open championship, just as there is in golf. Tennis leaders have long advocated one. They thought it would be a good stunt It may become a necessity.

Meine Hurls Fine Game, Allows Five Hits At Pirates Top Brooklyn 4-2

COMOROSKY AND GRANTHAM STAR

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, May 12.—The Pittsburgh Pirates with Heine Meine hurling a five-hit game, downed the Brooklyn Dodgers again yesterday, this time it was 4 to 2.

The Pirates got to "Dazzy" Vance for ten hits, not an extra-base hit was smote by the Ensmen, but Comorosky hammered out three singles, and Grantham had two safe hits. The Pirates had one big inning, the fourth, when they tallied three runs. Only two members of the Pirates, Lloyd Waner and Thevenow failed to hit.

Vance hurled good ball, fanning five and walking three but failed in the pinches.

The Dodgers could not solve Meine when hits would have meant runs.

OLDSMOBILE'S NEW quiet SECOND GEAR GIVES A new KIND OF ACCELERATION

Four-door Sedan

SWIFT • SMOOTH • QUIET

You can't appreciate how much a really quiet second gear adds to driving enjoyment until you take the wheel and try the new Oldsmobile.

For this feature, one of many important new ones now offered in Oldsmobile, gives a new kind of acceleration. It is unusually swift, to give you the lead in traffic. It is remarkably smooth, to give added zest to fast getaway. And it is almost unbelievably noise-free—actually rivaling high-gear performance in quietness.

These unusual advantages of Oldsmobile's new Quiet Second Gear are given the highest possible degree of utility by the famous Syncro-Mesh transmission. This feature enables you to shift smoothly and easily through all gears without clashing. And this applies not only to the shifts from low into second and from second to high, but also to the change from high back to second. This shift . . . so difficult with the ordinary transmission, and so useful for a quick burst of speed in traffic . . . can be made easily and silently, without reducing car speed.

The new Oldsmobile is an unusually satisfactory car to drive for many reasons. And not the least of these is its new Quiet Second Gear—transforming Oldsmobile's smooth, increased power into keen, fast, quiet acceleration . . . and contributing new pleasure—new satisfaction—to driving.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

Ball Yard Banter

Not all the oldsters have been having the swell time winning ball games which has attended the efforts of such veterans as Clarence Mitchell of the New York Giants and Burleigh Grimes of the St. Louis Cardinals.

These two have been pitching some of the best brand of baseball of their careers.

Contrasted are the efforts of Red Faber of the Chicago White Sox and Jack Quinn, the ex-Athletic, who has been given a chance this season by the Robins.

Mitchell, Grimes, Faber and Quinn are the last of the spitball pitchers in the major leagues.

Mitchell and Grimes have been pitching full-length games and not only surviving on the mound until the last man is out in the ninth but also winning said games.

Faber and Quinn have been unable to finish games or to win them. And Faber has a better team behind him than he had last year.

* * *

However, the arrival of warmer weather may strengthen Faber's and Quinn's arms and renew their pitching power. What Grimes or Mitchell would be able to do with the current White Sox and Robins behind them might also make another story.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Market Reactionary In Morning Session

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 12.—New York Central's 4½-point break to 92⅝, following publication of its first quarter earnings statement, unsettled the Railroad stocks this morning and the whole market turned reactionary as the session advanced. New York Central's report was disappointing in that it showed a $145,000 deficit in the first three months of the year, against a net income of $8,471,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

The Rails as a group yielded easily to selling pressure, Balitmore and Ohio losing 2 points at 62; Missouri Pacific down 3 at 20; Pennsylvania down 1¼; Rock Island down a point and Atchison down 3 at 169½. In breaking under 93 New York Central, which soared in 1929 to 256½, sold at the lowest price since 1923.

Allied Chemical was again a weak spot in the high-priced specialties and sold off nearly 5 points at 118½. United States Steel lost more than a point and American Can 1½, but there were no outstanding weakness in the Industrials and Utilities. Selling orders dribbled into the market and prices settled lower, mostly by reason of meagre buying demand from outside sources. Columbia Gas fell off to a new low at 29¼. Paramount Publix was unaffected by the reduction of its dividend to $2.50 a share, since the dividend cut was expected in Wall Street.

Grain, Cotton and Commodities were dull and steady. Copper sold at 9 cents a pound in anticipation of an increase in the April report on refined stocks of the metal on hand, but the big producers were reported out of the market. Call money renewed at 1 per cent and Liberty Bonds reached slightly higher prices. Auburn Auto near the noon period showed a loss of 12 points.

Practical Joker Caused Handel To Flee Opera

Within A Month After He Stormed Out Of London He Composed "The Messiah"

Many are the tales told by the biographers of George Frederick Handel of the irritations he suffered while acting as conductor of his own operas in London. He was so sensitive to disturbances of various sorts that finally a practical joker connected with the opera house was moved to play the greatest joke of his life, with the result that Handel stormed out of the opera house, never to return.

All was ready for the opera to begin one night. The Prince of Wales was in his box. The orchestra presumably was tuned to the last fraction of a tone. Handel appeared from the wings and took his place on the director's stand. He waved his baton—and such a din!

The practical joker had seen to it that every instrument was out of tune. The sound was like an orchestra falling downstairs, or playing with the music upside down. The audience, never having heard any of the modern music of the present era roared and held its sides.

Poor Handel! He rushed off the stage, kicking a hole through the side of a bass viol that obstructed his way, hurling a kettledrum into the pit and pitching to the floor a fine Cremona violin belonging to the concert master. His beautiful white curled wig was askew and one of his silver knee buckles remained as a souvenir as he tore out of the stage door, never again to set foot inside the opera house.

Pleading was in vain. Handel went into retirement, and within a month gave to the world the greatest product of his genius, the oratorio "The Messiah." Disgusted with the antics in London and the prevailing irreverence toward music, he took his new work to Dublin, where it was produced with immediate success.

Grasshopper Mystery

The grasshopper has raised a new question here. During the locust invasion of the past summer and fall many giant Suhuaro and smaller cacti were found literally covered with grasshoppers impaled on the sharp spines.

Do these crop pests simply fail to look where they leap, or do birds file them away on the spines for future consumption? That's the moot question. Many dry land farmers say that the birds, used to droughty years, have become provident and store up grasshoppers on cactus spines and barbs of wire fences, leaving it to the sun to "cure" them.—From the Houston Post-Dispatch.

Marble Champ's Winning Grin

Winner of the marble tournament, one of the features in the Boys' Week at Philadelphia, Pa., Edwin Jusak (upper), aged 12, got the title of marble champion and a handsome watch. BRIAND SEEN AS NEXT PRESIDENT

Following his triumph in the chamber of deputies, which indorsed by a vote of 430 to 52, his work in the cause of world peace, there seemed to be little doubt that Aristide Briand, veteran French minister of foreign affairs, would be elected president of the republic by parliament, meeting in national assembly, May 13.

Business Men In Spain Enjoy Afternoon Siesta

In That Land Of Leisure Stores Close For Daytime Sleeping Hours

The Spaniards dines at 10 o'clock and goes to bed at 2. He necessarily gets up late. From 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon he generally takes a siesta. Places of business close for the two "sleeping hours" of the afternoon. In winter the time is mostly spent by men in clubs or on the promenade. The social life of men and women is far less intimate than in other European countries. Having been under Mohammedan influence for so many centuries, some Moslem customs have left a deep imprint and one is that the womans life is much separated from that of the man, L. S. in Christian Science Monitor.

Spanish women have a placid gentleness that seems peculiar to their languid style. Their soft eyes, finely arched bdows, heavy raven hair, and smooth dark skin—these constitute the Spanish type which stands distinct from that of all other peoples not only in coloring, but in general attractiveness and expression. The classic features are found among all classes. In the north it is the Basque type that prevails, but from Madrid south you are constantly meeting faces that recall Dante, Virgil or Savonarola, with the golden complexion of races from North Africa.

I recall a certain hodcarrier in the strets of Seville, a man so handsome of head and noble of feature that the simmering down of all races could scarcely have produced a more classic outline. And a woman serving at a market stall at Puerta del Sola in Madrid, who was so gracious of manner and gentle of movement, so aristocratic of face, that she might have been the daughter of a hundred kings.

Drought Hurt Trees

One Half Of Forest Area Of U. S. Affected This Year

W. R. Mattoon, of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, estimates that the trees on one-half of the total forest area of the United States made subnormal growth this year because of drought conditions. Also millions of small tree saplings have died from the parching drought.

This year's growth ring of new wood failing to reach full size, the value of the timber increment of the United States for the year falls short by many thousands of dollars. But if this happens only at rare intervals in the lifetime of the country's crop of timber trees, according to Mr. Mattoon. However, at the present rate of depletion of our forests, thought to be about four times as rapid as the rate of growth and merchantable quality timber, the loss of part of a year's growth and the probable slow recovery of many trees adds a serious side to the story.

Almost everybody now recognizes the Monroe Doctrine, except, possibly Mr. Monroe.

Plan To Erect Fitting Tablet Honoring Those Who Gave Service

Honoring the memory of New Castle's Polish World War veterans who sacrificed their lives in the service of the United States or Polish armies during the years of conflict, and as a fitting tribute to those who enlisted and were able to return, a bronze tablet, with names inscribed thereon, will be erected somewhere in the city within the next month or so.

The Polish Central Committee, a combined organization in which every Polish organization in the city is represented, will handle the selection of the tablet site.

All Polish patriotic functions, like the one held recently to celebrate the 140th anniversary of the adoption of Poland's first constitution, will be directed by the Central committee group, it was decided at a meeting last Sunday.

Just Among Us Girls

THE OLD HOME TOWN By Stanley

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Youngsters Get Religion In The Home

Habits Of Church Going Parents Example For Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

I am tremendously interested in the possibilities of parent education in the church and Sunday school. It is no business of mine whether you or your children have any conscientious religion or not; nor does it matter to me what particular brand of religion you wish your children to have. I am concerned about the possibilities those parents have of building a background in the home of religious guidance, who want to have their children nurtured spiritually and religiously. It seems to me they and their church have been almost blind to opportunities which have hardly yet been realized.

In an article entitled, "The Educational Significance of the Family," in the Westminster Leader for the Church School, May issue, I wrote what I thoroughly believe:

"The child gets most of his education in the home at times when he does not know that he is being educated.

"No institution has been created that affords so many normal learning motives and so many means for real education as the ideal home with parents who understand their children . . .

"A challenge to the church is to help to build better parenthood. At best, the Sunday school can have the children only a few hours each week. Even with week-day religious education the effect is very limited. The hope is in the home, particularly in the home of the father and mother who go to church.

"As with all the rest of the child's education, most of his fundamental spiritual development goes on at home. No matter how pious parents themselves are in regard to public worship, or even formal exercises of religion in the home, their religion will be accepted by their children in proportion to how happily they guide their children in basic habits of behavior and how well they cultivate unselfish habits, self-restraint and self-reliance in their children from infancy through adolescence.

"Assuming that we parents want our children to develop wholesome, upright lives enriched by good spiritual attitudes, our first task is to cultivate in ourselves good habits of conduct and to guide our children so well and so happily that they will always hold a very high regard for us. We want to earn their genuine esteem. Then we may hope that our ideals will be their ideals, our religion, indeed, their religion.

"The far-seeing pastor of the future will organize classes of parents, particularly young parents, in his Sunday school. These parents will not send their children to Sunday school, but will go with them. In addition to some Bible study, these parents will be led to study their children, and to study themselves in relation to their children. They will strive to grow not only 'in favor with God and men,' but also in favor with their families."

Bo'Broadway

by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

Central Press

NEW YORK, May 12.—Stephen Leacock, the Kidding Economist, pens a few words "in friendly appreciation of Prohibition in the United States, the greatest thing that ever happened—to Canada."

URBAN OVERTONES:

"How kin 80 per cent of th' band be foreign when they ain't but 65 men in th' band?"

THE CRUSH TERRIBLE

The furthest north in friendship was encountered by Dr. W. E. Aughinbaugh, guiding star of The Explorers' Club, who was standing on the afterdeck of a Staten Island ferryboat recently, with a bibulous friend, when a vagrant breeze stole up over the stern of the boat and blew the Doc's Truly-Stetson derby hat into the bay.

Whereupon The Bibulous One removed his own new $12 Spring lid and tossed it into the water.

"What on earth did you do that for?" said the Doc.

"Thash aw' ri'," replied the temporarily exhilarated lad. "I'm humiliatin' 'at dam wind 'at blew your hat off, see?"

Approximately one hundred persons a month meet death in New York as a result of automobile accident—most of them pedestrians.

The city is beautifully covered by a net work of traffic lights to which men and women on foot pay but scant heed. They labor under the impression that the lights are only for drivers.

In the heart of the theatrical district at night, on very busy corners, it requires the close attention of eight policemen to keep the mobs back of the curb until "the lights are with them."

One of these cops turned his back the other night to devote a moment's time to a recalcitrant taxi driver, and a female pedestrian stepped off the sidewalk directly in front of a purring sedan rolling merrily along to the tune of about 35-an-hour.

The cop walked up to the woman. He stood in front of her and addressed his remarks to the planet Jupiter twinkling dimly through the Broadway murk.

"I dunno what Gawd give 'em brains fer," he said. "But I guess I hadn't oughta kick. If their heads was a restin' place fer brains, I wouldn't have a job—get there on th' sidewalk!"

CROSS ROADS

Another old Broadway partnership has hit The Greased Chute. After eight years of rough-house clowning as a team, Clayton, Jackson and Durante have reached the place where the roads fork.

All three deny any rift or ill feeling.

Jimmy Durante, the genius of the trio, will resume his talking picture career. He is really a great clown who reached The Big Time of the honky-tonks.

Lew Clayton is headed for professional golf.

Eddie Jackson, wisest of the three, is going to lie back in the sunshine and watch the world roll by.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY:

The new manager of the Hotel Holland answers to the name of H. Brevoort Schnobly.

TIP TO CENSUS BUREAU.

Police Captain Jimmy Gillen of the Coney Island station has applied for retirement.

Years ago the Cap. achieved fame by his ability to estimate the size of beach crowds, at a single glance.

He'd stand on tiptoe, look out over the throng and say:

"About 550,000 on th' beach an' 100,000 in th' water."

No one ever questioned his figures—not even inferentially, by referring to them as Guesstimates. Some said he counted the legs of the bathers and divided by two.

But he never revealed his system and he's carrying the secret with him, into retirement.

ADD MIRACLES

These are decadent days.

A bunch o' Tammany Town cops foregathered the other day and fired 700 shots at a desperado wounding him five times.

And not an Innocent Bystander was punctured.

The Flower Parade

(This is another article of a series on gardens.)

PLANTING PERENNIALS
By DR. KARL F. KELLERMAN
Bureau of Plant Industry
U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Herbaceous perennials may be grown from seed. Although the seed may be sown from early spring to late summer, best results are usually obtained from early summer sowing, is the experience of horticulturists of the Bureau of Plant Industry. By winter the plants will be good-sized, and next summer they will be ready to bloom.

It is better, perhaps, to start the seed in a seed bed, cold frame or hot frame. But many gardeners do very well sowing the seed in a flower border where the plants are to bloom.

A few of the herbaceous perennials that do well when grown from seed are the Shasta daisy, feverfew, columbine, sweet william, rudbeckia, Canterbury bell, blanket flower, phlox, platycodon, hollyhock and delphinium.

A light, mellow, well-pulverized soil, mixed with one-fourth of its volume of thoroughly decomposed manure, is excellent for starting the seed. To cover the seed by about four times the smallest diameter of the seeds is a good rule in most cases. Firm the earth over them. Use a fine sprinkler in watering and avoid washing the soil and exposing the seed. Some gardeners cover the bed with cheesecloth to guard against disturbing the soil when watering. The covering, however, should be removed when germination starts. A cheesecloth covering, 18 inches or so high, may be used to protect the tender seedlings from the full sunlight.

When the first true leaves form, transplant the crowded plants. Remove carefully with the earth firm about the roots, and cover with a temporary shade until they are established.

The large flowering habaceous poppy should be sown where it is to bloom, as it does not stand transplanting very well.

DR. JOHNSON BACK FOR SHORT STAY

Dr. Elijah B. Johnson, national field secretary of the Southeastern Presbyterian Sanatorium at Albuquerque, New Mexico, has returned to New Castle for a brief stay following his visit to presbyteries in the Erie, Pa., district. Dr. Johnson will soon leave for the Pacific coast. He was in the New Castle district for several months before going to Erie.
